Nixon challenges Congress

Veto threat to spending bills

By JAMES T. WOOTER
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON—The White House warned Friday that President Nixon would veto a variety of bills pending in Congress and, as a last resort, would attempt to impound the funds they would authorize should his veto be overridden.

The announcement was the latest in a series of challenges and counter-challenges between Nixon and the Congress over the final authority in federal spending.

John D. Ehrlichman, the President's special assistant on domestic affairs, said the bills represented a "$9 billion dagger aimed at the heart of the American taxpayer" and predicted that if they were to become law, individual tax-bills would rise by 9 per cent.

"The President will do everything he can to avoid a tax increase," Ehrlichman said. "If he is able to resort to nonspending, he will do so."

The term "nonspending" refers to what many members of Congress call "impoundment" and simply amounts to the President's refusal to spend money already appropriated by the Congress.

By White House accounting, Nixon previously has declined to spend at least $8.7 billion of such funds; some congressional leaders place the figure at more than $12 billion.

The bills mentioned in Ehrlichman's warning Friday deal with a wide range of legislative subjects from flood-control and rural electrification to airport security and veterans' burial benefits.

Ehrlichman, taking on the public-lobby role that other administration figures have played during the debate of the last few months, called the bills "a herd of Trojan horses thundering our way from out of the Congress."

If enacted, they would result in budget-excesses totaling $8.7 billion over the next three fiscal years, he predicted, and "the American taxpayer can figure on an addition of $9 for every $100 of taxes paid."

Ehrlichman briefed reporters following a two-hour meeting of President Nixon and members of his Cabinet. "A wide range of domestic subjects was discussed," he said, including the planned vetoes and fund-impoundment.

Peering over his half-glasses, the 47-year-old Ehrlichman made it clear that Nixon believed that congressional spending threatened the validity of his campaign promise of no new taxes during his second term.

Ehrlichman's caveat on the President's intention to impound funds, "if he is able," was considered a recognition by the White House that Congress has responded to past "nonspending" by including clauses in certain legislation making expenditures mandatory.

A suit challenging the President's authority to impound appropriated funds is being litigated in federal district court in Missouri.

Ehrlichman challenged the propriety of the 15 bills, some of which were passed and vetoed during the last Congress, by forecasting that their enactment would result in budget-excess and also

Jobs climb, earnings too

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of Americans holding jobs increased by 1 per cent in February, while gains were posted in average weekly earnings and the length of the work week, indicating an expanding economy, the Labor Department reported Friday.

Unemployment also edged up because of the largest rise in jobseekers in a year. Many of them were women and teenagers, often an indication of increasing financial pressure on the family breadwinning father.

President Nixon's chief economic adviser, Herbert Stein, said that "all of the labor market infor-

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's unemployment rate remained steady at 5.2 per cent during February but total employment measured in sheer numbers edged downward slightly.

In Los Angeles County, the unemployment rate crept upward from 4.8 per cent in January to 4.9 per cent in February.

Statistics show that the economic expansion in progress is raising the demand for labor and can be expected to reduce unemployment.

Stein warned Thursday, after the largest boost in wholesale prices in 22 years, that the economic growth could turn into "an inflationary boom" without strong federal measures.

FRIDAY'S report by the Bureau of Labor Statistics said total employment rose nearly 800,000 in February to 81.8 million, the civilian work force jumped 965,000 to 86.6 million and unemployment increased 170,000 to 4.8 million.

On a seasonally adjusted basis, to account for normal fluctuations for the time of the year, the employment gain was 570,000, the work force rise was 650,000 and the unemployment increase was 76,000.

The bureau said the rise in unemployment was scarcely significant. It boosted the seasonally adjusted jobless rate from 5 to 5.1 per cent of the work force.

The length of the average work week increased 24 minutes to 37.3 hours for nonfarm rank-and-file workers, the highest in more than four years, and average manufacturing overtime work rose 12 minutes to 3.9 hours a week, the highest in more than six years.

Nations pledge dollar support

PARIS (UPI)—Finance ministers from the world's wealthiest nations pledged Friday combined action to defend the present monetary system but said European exchange markets would remain closed another week.

After more than four hours of meetings, the ministers said "They unanimously expressed their determination to insure jointly an orderly exchange rate system."

They scheduled a new meeting for March 16 to decide on detailed proposals worked out by their deputies during the coming week, "and to make it possible for the European Common Market countries and Sweden to reopen their exchange markets on Monday, March 19."

THE EXCHANGE markets have been closed since March 2 to prevent further speculation against the dollar, while financial leaders were seeking a solution to the current monetary crisis.

West German Finance Minister Helmut Schmidt told newsmen earlier the ministers had made progress toward solving the dollar crisis, declaring: "Chances for an international solution to the crisis are good." In a joint statement read out after the meeting by Valéry Giscard d'Estaing, France's finance minister, the ministers said the money crisis stemmed from "speculative movements of funds," rather than economic imbalances.

The meeting of the ministers, representing the world's 10 richest nations, was called after a new wave of selling hit the dollar in foreign markets, driving its value below the parity levels fixed by the Feb. 12 devaluation.

IN THEIR common statement, the ministers said they agreed "that the crisis was due to speculative movements of funds."

"They also agreed that the existing relationships between parities and central rates, following the recent alignment, correspond, in their view to the economic requirements and that these relationships will make an effective monetary contribution to a better balance of international payments."

The statement appeared to rule out a general float of European currencies, a move which would have spared foreign central banks the buying of unwanted dollars.

A man arrested as a suspect in the stabbing death of one Long Beach resident and the critical slashing of a 22-year-old barmaid may be a U.S. Marine escapee from a military mental hospital, police reported Friday.

The suspect, identified by police as Frank Edward Moxley, 19, of 206 Long Beach Blvd., was booked on charges of attempted murder and murder in the knifings.

Two other Long Beach residents were slain in the same 24-hour period. While police carried on an intensive manhunt Friday night for three bandits who shot and killed a pharmacist in his store, a North Long Beach woman awaited in jail her Monday arraignment on charges she shot her husband to death.

Moxley, his hands and shirt blood-spattered, was arrested by police about 2:30 a.m. Friday when they spotted him among spectators at the downtown scene where the barmaid was found with her throat slashed.

Rushed to St. Mary's Hospital moments after Moxley's arrest was Jacqueline Dozal, of 22126 Moneta Ave., Carson. She was given emergency treatment for a nine-inch gash in her neck which doctors said severed her jugular vein and her windpipe.

Late Friday night, the young woman was reported to be in good condition.

At the scene of the shooting, Moxley was seen with a group of men. He was wearing a dark jacket and light-colored pants. He was being escorted by police officers.

Peking to release POW of 20 years

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Downey, a CIA agent held in a Chinese prison for more than 20 years, will be set free Monday at the Hong Kong-China border, the White House announced Friday.

Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Peking's decision to commute Downey's sentence came after President Nixon asked that Premier Chou En-lai be informed Downey's mother was gravely ill. She suffered a stroke Wednesday.

ZIEGLER also announced that two American pilots shot down over Chinese territory during the Vietnam war will be released at the Hong Kong border Thursday.

They are Air Force Maj. Philip E. Smith, captured Sept. 20, 1965, and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Robert J. Flynn, captured Aug. 21, 1967. During presidential envoy Henry A. Kissinger's visit to Peking last month, China agreed to free the two pilots during the 60-day prisoner-release period agreed to by the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong.

The three are the only Americans known to be prisoners of the Chinese. Several others have been released in recent years.

Ziegler said Nixon telephoned Downey's brother, William, at his home in Connecticut shortly after receiving word of the decision. And the President told reporters at his Camp David, Md., retreat later in the day that he was elated by the "good news."

"PRESIDENT Nixon wants to express his personal appreciation to the government of the People's Republic of China for this action," Ziegler said.

Downey's mother, Mary Downey, 75, of New Britain, Conn., was reported hospitalized in a semicomatose Friday, and doctors would not permit the

Hopes up as JMC meets today on POW release

United Press International

The Vietnam Joint Military Commission meets in Saigon today and U.S. sources said they hope the meeting will agree on a date, possibly Wednesday, for the release of the next group of American POWs held by the Communists.

The United States asked the JMC Thursday to arrange for the release on the schedule announced by the White House last month. So far the Communists have not responded to the request.

A senior U.S. military official in Saigon said Friday that 75 per cent of the American forces in South Vietnam when the cease-fire began Jan. 28 have been withdrawn, leaving 7,789 U.S. military men in South Vietnam.

According to the U.S. interpretation of the Paris peace agreement, the American POWs are to be released in groups at a rate corresponding to withdrawal of U.S. troops. Just over half of the POWs have been released so far — 299, leaving 286 in captivity.

In the United States, meanwhile, as the initial euphoria of the return of the POWs began to wear off, symptoms of the difficulties of readjustment have begun to appear. It was announced Friday that another POW's wife has filed for divorce, the 10th such case which has come to light so far.

Mrs. Kile Berg, wife of Air Force Maj. Kile Berg, was awarded $500 a month temporary support in court at San Diego Thursday. The Bergs were married Oct. 3, 1960 and he was shot down July 27, 1965.

At Westover Air Force Base, Mass., Capt. Joseph Milligan of Annandale, N.J., and M. Sgt. Arthur Cormier of Bayshore, N.Y., said they favored "leniency" but not general amnesty for draft evaders.

Those men are still Americans, and I believe we should accept them back and provide leniency where leniency is due," Milligan told a news conference.

He said he had no criticism of the antiwar protesters because they were exercising their rights of self-expression. But he said he believed they did delay the end of the war.

"It is kind of ironic," he said, "that those people, in trying to bring about a quicker end of the war, prolonged it."

In Valley Forge, Pa., Army doctors reported Sgt. Bill Baird is partially paralyzed in both legs because of a spinal injury he suffered when he was captured by the Viet Cong nearly five years ago.

Baird, 23, of Wooster, Ohio, is able to walk with the aid of crutches. The doctors gave no indication if the paralysis could be cured.

During the time Baird was captive, his mother died of cancer, his brother was sent to a mental hospital and his father remarried.

"I've had a lot of trouble," he said, as he was wheeled into the Valley Forge hospital. "I don't know, I'm still very confused. I still don't believe it."

The hometowns of freed POWs continued to plan elaborate official welcoming ceremonies. In Pensacola, Fla., Army Spec. 5 Frederick Crowson received a key to the city Friday at an airport ceremony attended by about 2,000 persons. Crowson also received a fistful of POW bracelets with his name on them.

Crowson, 23, walked stiffly on feet still numb from a bout with malaria contracted during nearly three years in a Viet Cong prison camp in South Vietnam.

He ducked his face to his right shoulder repeatedly as he shook hands with well wishers, wiping away tears as he strode with his family to a makeshift lecture where he spoke briefly to the crowd.

"I'm lost for words," he said. "I've tried to think of a speech on the way over, but I can't think of any words to thank such fine Americans. We have a wonderful country and I was proud to serve it."

London bomb security tight

Combined News Services

LONDON — British authorities tightened security measures around government offices in bomb-jittery London Friday as Scotland Yard detectives continued questioning 10 persons in the explosion of two car bombs that caused heavy casualties and blitz-like destruction Thursday. Yard spokesmen said one man died and 259 persons were injured when the cars packed with explosives exploded in central London. Two other car bombs were found and defused. In Belfast, sources within the militant provisional wing of the militant Catholic Irish Republican Army said an 18-member commando squad planted the bombs. Eight made it back to Ireland, but the other 10 were arrested. Meanwhile final returns from Northern Ireland's referendum on union with Britain showed that voters approved ties with Britain by a 100-to-1 margin.

Close French vote

PARIS — French party leaders Friday predicted a photo finish in Sunday's critical runoff second round of parliamentary elections which will decide whether the ruling Gaullists or a Socialist-Communist alliance governs France for the next five years. "A few hundred votes or even a few dozen in each district could well decide the result," Gaullist Premier Pierre Messmer told eleventh-hour campaign rallies.

Boyle linked to foe's killing

ERIE, Pa.—The state Friday named W. A. "Tony" Boyle for the first time as having authorized the transfer of $20,000 in United Mine Workers union funds which the prosecution claims was used to pay off the killers of Joseph A. Yablonski and his wife and daughter. Later the state called one of the confessed murderers as a witness who testified that he was told that "a man named Tony" had backed the killings. It was the first time in the series of Yablonski murder trials that prosecutor Richard Sprague made the Boyle connection in open court, although Sprague did not say Boyle knew how the money was used. Boyle, former UMW president, has never been charged in the Yablonski murders and has repeatedly denied any connection with them.

Keeping self in job?

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — A Pinkerton security guard, assigned to watch for potential hijackers at the Montgomery Municipal Airport, was arrested Friday on federal charges he made five telephone calls threatening to blow up commercial airliners. The FBI identified the suspect as William Allen Philip "Phil" Jenkins, 44, a divorced man who lives alone in a trailer here.

Microwave dispute

WASHINGTON—Two industry scientists told a Senate committee Friday that Microwave ovens are safe and that as long as manufacturers continue to meet federal safety standards no one will be injured by them. "In millions of hours of use there has never been a case of injury to humans — nor will there be so long as microwave ovens meet present federal safety standards," according to Dr. Sol Michaelson a University of Rochester biophysicist and an industry consultant on microwave energy.

Life on Mars hinted

WASHINGTON — Photographs of Mars sent back by Mariner 9 have greatly enhanced the possibility that life exists on Mars, and a spacecraft scheduled to land on the planet in three years may detect it, the head of Mariner scientific experiments said Friday. Dr. Carl Sagan, Mariner experiment group leader, said intensive studies of the Mariner 9 photographs show that running water must have existed on Mars in comparatively recent times. The analysis was made of Mariner photos showing numerous sinuous channels with tributaries meandering for hundreds of miles across the planet. They resemble riverbeds on earth.

Soviet royalties

MOSCOW — The head of the Soviet publishing industry indicated Friday that American authors might receive at least part of their royalties in dollars when Soviet adherence to the Universal Copyright Convention takes effect May 27. However, Boris Stukalin, the publishing executive, ruled out payment on new editions of previously published works on the ground that application of the new copyright arrangements was not retroactive. The Soviet Union had previously followed a policy of reproducing foreign works at will without assuming any royalty obligations, and other nations were free to make similar use of Soviet works.

Guerrillas slain

TEL AVIV — Israeli troops raided an underground bunker in occupied Gaza City Friday and killed three leaders of a local Arab guerrilla ring, including the head of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine in the Gaza Strip, the military command said. Arab commentators, meanwhile, noted that Egyptian, Libyan and Syrian leaders so far have refrained from taking a stand for or against the Black September attack on the Saudi Arabian embassy in Khartoum March 1 and the subsequent murder of two American diplomats and a Belgian charge d'affaires.

Ford recalls buses

DETROIT—The Ford Motor Co. Friday announced it is recalling 1,267 school buses to find about 125 which may need modification of the brake system. Owners of 699 buses, including 1972 and 1973 model vehicles, are being notified that the service and parking brake system nylon air brake tubes may be improperly secured to the chassis. These nylon air brake tubes could drop close enough to be melted, causing failures of the brake system.

Jet cost spiral

WASHINGTON — The Defense Department acknowledged Friday that spiraling costs might prevent production of any more than 134 F14 Tomcat jet fighters, less than half the number the Navy wants as the mainstay of its future air fleet. Pentagon spokesman Jerry Friedheim said the Navy's surprise compromise decision Thursday to terminate the old F14 contract with the 134th plane was designed to keep Grumman Aerospace Corp. of Long Island from being forced into bankruptcy. The navy originally signed for 313 of the new swing-wing fighters.

Oil spill threat

COLD BAY, Alaska — A federal wildlife official said Friday that thousands of waterfowl may be threatened by the spill of over 200,000 gallons of fuel from a grounded and ruptured tanker. The acting manager of the Izembek National Wildlife Refuge at Cold Bay said 13,000 sea ducks and geese were in the area earlier this week. A 552-foot tanker ran aground Thursday in the bay — located on the western end of the Alaska Peninsula, about 700 miles southwest of Anchorage.

Drug ring smashed

NEW YORK — Federal officials said Friday they have smashed a half-billion-dollar international dope ring which wholesaled narcotics amid signs and incantations from a bizarre voodoo headquarters in upper Manhattan. The cult leader was among 21 men indicted. Two of the defendants were described as airline employees, used in the movement since 1968 of an estimated 753 kilos of heroin from Europe to South America, and then to Miami and New York. The ring was the fourth to be broken among the five major suppliers of narcotics to this country, an official said.

Reagan considers buying new ranch

Combined News Services
Gov. Reagan confirmed Friday that he is considering purchasing a ranch in the Santa Barbara area and that he may sell part or all of his undeveloped 778-acre ranch site in Riverside County.

Reagan said it has taken longer than he expected to get water and power for the Riverside property, which he purchased in 1968 for $240,500.

The Riverside property is now appraised by the Riverside County tax assessor for a $417,500 market value and has a current annual tax of $12,882.

"Right at this moment, we are considering eliminating at least a part" of the Riverside property, Reagan said. He added "maybe" he would sell the entire site.

The Republican governor refused to disclose which ranch he is considering purchasing in the Santa Barbara area, saying: "It wouldn't be wise to say right now."

Asked about a report in the Riverside Daily Press and Riverside Enterprise that he was negotiating to purchase a fully developed 686-acre ranch in Santa Barbara County, Reagan said: "That's just one of the areas we've been looking at."

He said he and his wife Nancy "like Southern California" and are looking for a ranch that would be "fairly close" to Los Angeles.

In January Reagan told reporters he was "getting a little impatient" with delays in bringing utilities to the Riverside ranch site.

Mannix

A man driving a car with a personalized Mannix license plate told Beverly Hills police Friday two men in a black sedan fired two bullets through his windshield.

Don E. Edwards, 40, who once was associated with the popular mystery show, said the car followed him for several miles before the shots were fired at him Thursday night.

An anonymous telephone call earlier in the week to a secretary for the show deepened the mystery. The male caller asked of Peggy Corder, "Who's the guy driving the car with Mannix plates?" She told the caller it was not Mike Connors, star of the show. Another person with the show said Edwards had offered the plates to Connors when he was with the program but the actor had declined.

Chilled

Louis Rapsted spent a cold two days before escaping Friday from an icebox, where he had been placed by burglars.

Rapsted, operator of the Shamrock Bar in Billings, Montana, told police he was robbed, tied up and put in the cooler by two armed assailants at closing time Tuesday morning.

Police said they aren't sure how Rapsted survived in the walk-in icebox, but that he reported escaping by untying himself and kicking out the door.

U.S. cuts down police height rule as biased

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department ruled Friday that local police departments must eliminate most height requirements or lose their Law Enforcement Assistance Administration grants.

The announcement by Atty. Gen. Richard Kleindienst should open up police employment to more short Americans, especially those of Japanese and Mexican ancestry who had taken the lead in protesting old height requirements an LEAA spokesman said.

"These guidelines are significant steps forward in the LEAA's effort to eliminate discrimination based on national origin, sex, and race," Kleindienst said. In the department's words the new guideline "prohibits the use of minimum height requirements when they are unrelated to the job performance of law enforcement personnel and tend to disproportionately disqualify persons of certain national origins and races and women from jobs on police forces or other criminal justice agencies."

The LEAA Friday also issued a guideline requiring law enforcement agencies which have 50 or more employees and have received at least $25,000 in LEAA funds to establish equal-employment-opportunity programs.

Her earth

The nine adopted sons and daughters of author Pearl S. Buck buried her Friday under an ash tree on her beloved Bucks County, Pa., farm, a gravesite she chose herself in her own "good earth."

The 80-year-old daughter of Chinese missionaries had written 85 books. The most famous was her second novel, "The Good Earth." Her writings won the Pulitzer and Nobel prizes.

She died Tuesday in Vermont, and the funeral was private.

Farewell

Gov. Reagan will host a farewell cocktail party Monday in Sacramento for former Assembly Republican leader Robert Monagan and his wife, the governor's office said Friday.

Monagan, of Tracy, is leaving the Assembly after serving as GOP leader for eight years. He has accepted a $38,000-a-year liaison job in the second-term Nixon administration.

Pretty face

Former Miss America Bess Myerson is more than just a pretty face around the New York Hilton hotel, where she attended a recent banquet.

The outgoing city consumer affairs commissioner said a waiter approached her on the dais about running for mayor and whispered: "I'm here to tell you that I represent all the waiters at the Hilton, and if you run we'll all vote for you."

"It's just not for me," said Miss Myerson, who has handed her resignation as commissioner to retiring mayor John Lindsay. "I'm not going to run for any office in the foreseeable future — and I have 20-20 vision."

Oops

President Nixon momentarily urged a new woman member of his Republican team to run for Congress Friday, then realized he was committing a political faux pas.

At a White House picture-taking session with Janet Johnston, new co-chairman of the Republican National Committee, the President remarked, "She should run for Congress."

After a moment, he caught himself and said: "Oops, no. We have a Republican out there."

Miss Johnston, 33, is from Yolo County, Calif. — and that area is represented by a Democrat, not a Republican as Nixon thought. The Democrat is Rep. Robert Leggett, a liberal who has been congressman from Yolo for 10 years.

The death of Ron McKernan, the 27-year-old "Pig Pen" of the Grateful Dead rock music group, probably was due to natural causes, a coroner said Friday in Corte Madera, Calif.

McKernan had a history of liver trouble.

Bugliosi conflict at issue

Ward to boycott exec meet fleeing suspect

By NOEL SWANN
From Our L.A. Bureau

Supervisor Baxter Ward said Friday he plans to boycott part of an executive session Monday dealing with his nomination of former prosecutor Vincent Bugliosi or other nominations to the county's Air Pollution Hearing Board.

Ward's announcement in a letter to board chairman Pete Schabarum was the latest in a series of events highlighted by torrid clashes between Ward and Supervisor James Hayes since Ward first threw Bugliosi's name into the ring last Tuesday.

HAYES, chairman of the Air Pollution Control District, has contended that Ward was out of order in naming the former Manson trial prosecutor as a potential board member without advising other supervisors he intended to make the nomination.

Hayes said appointments to the control board should properly be made by the five supervisors acting as a committee of the whole and that the matter should be discussed in private.

Ward, whose bid to Bugliosi Tuesday failed for want of a second, since Hayes has stated he will fight any bid by Hayes to assume "jurisdiction" of the APCD simply because Hayes is chairman of that department.

Ward said the hearing board should be completely independent of the APCD and that Hayes would be in "conflict of interest" if he used his position as chairman of the APCD to influence appointments to the hearing board.

IN THE latest letter to Schabarum, Ward said he has not been assured by "competent authority" (presumably county counsel) that he was "completely correct" in his action in nominating Bugliosi during an open board meeting.

Ward said supervisors sitting as a committee of the whole are properly constituted whether they are sitting in session or an executive one. Also, he said, the makeup of an executive session would require him to make his nomination to the whole board in exactly the same way he did it in open session Tuesday.

Because he "intended to remain firm" in his nomination of Bugliosi, Ward said he does "not see the value of taking part in a private session to discuss personalities, qualifications or issues that I truly feel should be made totally public."

HE ADDED however, that he would like to sit in on the second part of the executive meeting to discuss possible expansion of the Civil Service Commission from three to five members.

Members of the Air Pollution Hearing Board, paid $100 a day, decide to grant or deny variances to industrial firms which cannot meet smog control requirements.

Bugliosi, an unsuccessful candidate in the race against Joseph Busch for district attorney last November, now is in private practice as a lawyer.

Cops ram car of

A 28-year-old Corvair man, suspected of three Norwalk-area robberies within a matter of minutes, was arrested Friday after his capture by a deputy who crashed a sheriff's patrol car into the suspect's auto to stop him.

Norwalk Sheriff's deputies said George Arthur Horner, of 17825 Chapparral Ave., was booked on two counts of suspicion of robbery and one of suspicion of attempted robbery following the series of holdups that began at 2:35 a.m.

Deputies said a bandit robbed Ted's Texaco Station, Norwalk and Alondra boulevards and the Boy's Market, 15433 Pioneer Blvd., Norwalk, taking an undetermined amount of cash at both locations.

Minutes later, the same bandit attempted to force attendant Lewis Elasser, 20, to give him the money from the Standard Station at 16725 Pioneer Blvd., Norwalk.

Elasser said he saw a Sheriff's car passing by and called for help, causing the bandit to jump into his waiting auto and flee towards the Artesia Freeway.

Dep. Robert Lite, who pulled into the station and picked up Elasser; said he gave chase, intentionally crashing his squad car into the suspect's car just before it reached the freeway onramp at Pioneer Boulevard.

Burglars beat, kill elderly Maywood man

An elderly man died Friday after he was beaten and strangled by two intruders who ransacked his Maywood house.

Police said an unidentified female houseguest told them that Morris Leo Victor, 78, heard a door squeak during the night and went to investigate.

She said she went into the kitchen and was knocked down and then shoved into a bathroom by two young men. Victor was found beaten and strangled on the floor of the kitchen.

Filters

In early December, I invested $4,882 in the American Filter Corp., 1801 Avenue of the Stars, Los Angeles, for a local distributorship to sell automobile oil and air filters. I was supposed to get a shipment of filters the first week in January and then someone from the company was to help me establish my business. As yet, I haven't received the filters and have been unable to reach the company president, Donald Delliar. Because of their lack of cooperation, I want my money back. Can you help? V.L.S., Long Beach.

No. Kellar refuses to refund your money. He told ACTION LINE he is "standing by the contract," which doesn't specify a delivery date, and expects you to do the same. "I will do everything I can to help make him a successful distributor," he said. A change in company ownership and a change of filter manufacturers did delay shipment of the filters and he said he had written you about them. The filters are now available but you tell us you have, on the advice of your attorney, refused to accept them.

Biking

The English people do a great deal of bicycle riding. Do they have any special traffic advantages for bikes in England? Any chance for having special bike lanes here in Long Beach, possibly by eliminating parking on one side of some streets? A.J., Lakewood.

Although there are a few bike lanes scattered throughout some districts of London, bicycle riders there generally are accorded no special privileges, according to a spokesman for the Consulate General of Great Britain in Los Angeles. Bicycle safety equipment laws are strictly enforced, she said, and cyclists must obey automobile traffic regulations. Long Beach city officials currently are studying the possibility of building a bike path along the shore front, but a spokesman for the city traffic engineer's office said they are "leary" of whether painting special lanes on the city streets would really improve bicycle safety. He added that it also would be "a very touchy problem" to try to eliminate curb parking in front of businesses whose livelihood depends in large part on their customers being able to park nearby.

SOUND OFF!

I am a middle class white man who recently moved his family into the central Long Beach black ghetto. I have owned property in this neighborhood for some years but I had to live here to see what it's really like. We just do not get the service from the city the people in white neighborhoods take for granted. There is a dangerous open storm sewer nearly always filled with trash and stagnant water. The alley behind is so littered with debris you can't drive through it so we have to haul our trash cans out the front. There are several vacant lots filled with dilapidated couches and mattresses and other flammable items. When I lived in a white district and put such items outside, I heard from the fire marshal in two days even though I was just keeping them there until trash collection day. There are numerous cracked and broken curbs in this neighborhood. I called several times and finally was told they would be repaired eventually. When I lived in a white district, these things were attended to routinely. There is a flock of chickens nearby which keep us awake all night, though the animal shelter confirmed chickens are not allowed in the city. The other day, a murder was committed in the neighborhood. It was the first time I've seen a police car since we moved here. It is now easy for me to understand why blacks have such a low opinion of authority and law and order. Obviously, the police, dogcatchers, street department and others concerned will not be seen near here for anything less than murder. W.C., Long Beach.

Suspects in auto death charged

Felony complaints charging vehicular manslaughter and drunken driving were issued Friday against a San Pedro man accused by police of causing a two-car accident in which a pregnant Torrance housewife burned to death.

The suspect, Jack T. Marquez, 29, who is a cook at a Harbor City restaurant, is under treatment for a head injury in the jail ward of County-USC Medical Center. Harbor Division traffic investigators said he is expected to be hospitalized for at least a week.

The accident in which Mrs. Anita Robinson, 18, was killed, occurred Wednesday night on Gaffey Street near Westminster Drive in San Pedro. Police said a car driven by Mrs. Robinson's husband, Lawrence, 23, was rear-ended by Marquez' auto. The Robinson car burst into flames, trapping Mrs. Robinson inside.

Robinson, who attempted repeatedly to pull his wife from the burning wreckage, was seriously injured. Police arrested Marquez at the scene.

Dep. Dist. Atty. Thomas R. Simpson, who issued the felony complaints against Marquez, recommended bail of $3,000. Marquez will be arraigned in Municipal Court at San Pedro upon his release from the hospital, police said.

Separate trial denied officer

A separate trial was denied Friday to Cypress police Sgt. Thomas Baroldi, 26, charged with the shooting death of a Marine Corps pilot in a fight which also involved a Garden Grove police officer.

Jerry Gray, 28, the other policeman, is charged with wounding a man in the incident last Jan. 5 outside a Tustin bar.

Gray is expected to petition for a separate trial at a hearing next Friday, before Santa Ana Superior Court Judge James K. Turner. The court has not set a trial date for the two officers. Investigators said Baroldi and Gray were involved in an argument over a woman in the bar where they were drinking during their off-duty hours.

Sgt. Baroldi is charged with fatal shooting Marine Capt. Randall S. Robinette, 25, of Tustin. Gray is accused of shooting and wounding Samuel Campise, 35, of Tustin, who has since recovered.

Congress urged to lift 'equal time' rule on TV

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Top officials of the three major television networks Friday urged suspension of the federal government's equal time requirements so that future presidential candidates could meet in face-to-face debates.

The executives of the National Broadcasting Co., the Columbia Broadcasting System and the American Broadcasting Co. also came out in favor of legislation that would shift restrictions covering spending for ads in the broadcast media to an overall ceiling covering all campaign expenditures.

The equal time requirements are set by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) to assure all candidates for public office a fair opportunity to present their views to the voters through the broadcast media.

The networks claim the FCC rules often prevent them from offering free time to major party candidates because they cannot afford to offer equal time to all other contenders in the election.

THE NETWORK officials stated their positions in testimony before a Senate Commerce Subcommittee on Communications, which is considering a bill to broaden the 1971 Federal Election Campaign Act. The proposed bill would set an across-the-board 25-cent per voter spending limit.

Dr. Frank Stanton, outgoing vice chairman of CBS, offered eight free prime time half-hours for candidates of the two major parties "to use as they wish."

Leonard H. Goldenson, chairman of the board at ABC, which previously has offered free time to presidential candidates, said suspension of the equal time code as it applies to them "would significantly alleviate the cost of running for these offices."

ALL OF the network officials agreed that since "neither candidate will be the incumbent," 1976 was the most opportune time to again hold debates similar to the 1960 confrontations between Richard Nixon and John F. Kennedy.

As for the present limitation of campaign broadcast spending, all agreed it "discriminated" against their industry in favor of the non-broadcast media.

"If limitations are to be imposed, they should be applied to total expenditures — not to specific categories," said Goodman.

President Vincent T. Wasilewski of the National Association of Broadcasters also testified in favor of the equal time exemption.

federal reports which noted the recent transaction.

The $89,000 had come to the Nixon committee in the form of four checks from a Mexico City lawyer. After passing through several hands at the committee, the checks ultimately were deposited in a Miami bank account belonging to Bernard L. Barker. He was one of four Miami men who pleaded guilty in January to breaking into the Watergate headquarters of the Democratic National Committee the previous June.

The true source of the money remained a mystery for some time, though it was believed linked to Allen since the Mexico City man was a lawyer for Allen's Gulf Resources and Chemical Corp. of Houston.

As a result, Allen, who also was a Texas fundraiser for the Nixon finance committee, and his company became the subject of federal inquiries.

Allen, in a letter dated Jan. 23 to finance committee chairman Maurice Stans, asked "with considerable regret" for his $100,000 back.

involved in various land and development dealings.

Sources close to the Nixon re-election committee confirmed that Duncan wrote several weeks ago asking that his contribution be canceled because "I now find that I am unable to pay the note at maturity."

The $305,000 note had been sold to the First National Bank of Washington for a modest discount at $294,799. Terms of the note were never made public.

But at the same time the bank was holding its note, another Washington bank was suing Duncan for $200,000. It said he owed on another past-due note. That loan had been obtained by Duncan two days before he contributed $200,000 to the Humphrey campaign.

Court papers recently filed in San Antonio indicate that debt may be settled by an unidentified interest paying it off.

Duncan has been consistently unavailable for comment to the AP since it began investigating his affairs in September.

$100,000 contribution by Texan is refunded

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Robert H. Allen, a Texas oilman who gave $89,000 later traced to the bank account of a man convicted in the Watergate break-in, has requested and received his entire $100,000 contribution back from President Nixon's re-election committee.

The Committee for the Re-Election of the President announced the refund Friday as it filed

GOP contributor taken off hook

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Walter T. Duncan, a financially plagued Texan who donated a $305,000 I.O.U. to President Nixon's re-election campaign, has been released from the debt at his own request.

The Nixon committee has paid approximately that amount back to its bank, which had purchased the note and gave the Committee for the Re-election of the President actual cash for the contribution.

DUNCAN, who earlier in 1972 had given a $300,000 contribution for the Democratic presidential nomination bid of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, was one of the year's biggest listed political donors.

But at the same time he was making the donations, Duncan was embroiled in a series of financial, legal and governmental difficulties. The Associated Press disclosed in October. Since then, the difficulties have escalated.

Duncan, formerly of Bryan, Tex., and now of San Antonio, has been in-

Columnist Anderson rips nominee

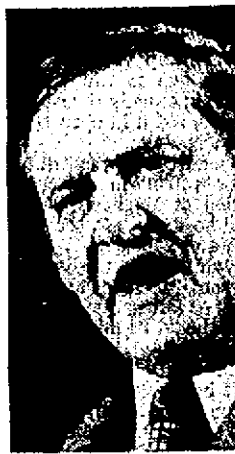

Gray called Nixon hatchet man

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Columnist Jack Anderson testified Friday that L. Patrick Gray III was a "political hatchet man" for President Nixon who would turn his office into a political plum if he is confirmed as permanent FBI director.

Gray's nomination to succeed J. Edgar Hoover also came under fire from Joseph Rahu, vice chairman of the Liberal Americans for Democratic Action, and Rep. Edward Koch, D-N.Y., who expressed concern about secret FBI files on members of Congress.

Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., after inspecting FBI records made available to the Senate Judiciary Committee, said he was more determined than ever to force presidential counsel John Dean to testify on his role in the administration's inquiry into the Watergate affair.

Gray has acknowledged giving Dean 82 FBI investigative reports on the break-in and bugging of

JACK ANDERSON
'Political Plum'

Democratic National Headquarters last June to help him with his own internal White House study of the incident.

Tunney charges that Dean himself was involved at least indirectly in the affair, and that it was "unbelievable" that Gray would give him access to FBI files. Nixon, who said last August that Dean's inquiry absolved all White House staffers then employed of wrongdoing, has warned he will keep Dean from testifying.

White House domestic affairs adviser John Ehrlichman told reporters Friday that he asked Kean to attend his questioning by FBI agents about E. Howard Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy, both former White House employees who pleaded guilty or were convicted in the Watergate trial.

"I just felt more comfortable" having Dean present, Ehrlichman said, adding that he considered it a citizen's "absolute right" to have a lawyer sitting in on FBI interviews. "I know that doesn't make the bureau happy," he said.

Ehrlichman said he told the agents that Hunt and Liddy had done narcotics work for the White House and that "they had since left the area of my concern" when the interview took place shortly after the Watergate break-in.

Anderson told the Senate committee that the "FBI has been, in varying degrees, a political agency every since Mr. Gray took command last year" as acting director. He said Gray had "proved himself to be a political hatchet man for Richard Nixon" since he left the Navy in 1960 and joined Nixon's presidential campaign that year.

"The greatest possible abuse would be to turn the directorship into a political plum," Anderson said. "And I can guarantee you, if Mr. Gray is confirmed as director, there will be a parade of political hacks and a mountain of corpses left by political hatchet men."

Navy hid C5 cost overrun, says Aspin

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The cost to correct problems in the C5 plane rose $95 million from mid-1971 to mid-1972 but the Air Force "tried to cover up the seriousness of the situation by not reporting $72 million" of this to Congress, Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said Friday.

"This new $95 million cost overrun is just one more sign that the C5 is probably one of the worst procurement disasters ever foisted on the American taxpayer," Aspin said in a statement as he released an 8-page General Accounting Office staff study of the super-transport plane.

"Every three months, the Air Force is required to submit a complete report to Congress on the cost and status of the C5, but did not include $72 million of the modifications costs.

"To top it all off, the GAO now reports that the Air Force may need an additional $65 million to modify the C5 engines within several years," Aspin said.

GAO said the Air Force's mid-1972 estimate that $259 million would be needed to correct deficiencies in the plane, a $95 million increase over the mid-1972 figure.

This includes, GAO said, $166 million for deficiencies already identified in June 1972, $18 million for additional changes, $30 million for "undefined deficiencies expected to occur based on C-141 experience," and $45 million for engineering changes to the plane structure expected to be generated by an independent review

Cost of fish due to go up

GLOUCESTER, Mass. — The price of fish, suggested by government officials as an alternative to increasingly expensive meat, may go up as much as seven per cent in the next few weeks because of the dollar devaluation, federal economists say.

About two-thirds of all fish eaten in the United States are imported, including most of the fin fish, now among the cheapest.

"I would expect imported fish to go up as much as 10 per cent," said John Rittgers, an economist at the National Marine Fisheries Service here.

"Overall, the price of fish will be influenced upwards. It could go up as much as seven per cent."

The impact of the monetary change — making U.S. dollars buy less in foreign countries — probably will be felt as soon as importers begin negotiating new contracts with foreign suppliers, Rittgers said.

"THE IMPACT will be most noticeable among frozen products," he said, because almost all fish imports are frozen in blocks and fillets.

The United States imports more than 80 per cent of its cod, flounder, turbot, haddock, ocean perch, pollock and whiting. This fish is generally only sold fresh when it is caught by American fishermen, and this often costs twice as much as frozen imports.

"Fish is still quite a bit less expensive than beef," said Rittgers. "A good grade of hamburger costs $1.10-$1.20 a pound. You can buy a pretty good quality haddock fillet for nearly that price. Fish is still a good buy."

During 1972, fish increased in price 11 per cent, while meat rose 14 per cent, according to the government.

THE PRICES have increased for everyone. A year ago wholesalers paid 44 cents a pound for frozen blocks of flounder. Now they pay 60 cents.

And the wholesalers pass the increases along to the retailers. One Boston wholesaler who charged 65 cents a year ago for flounder is now charging 90 cents.

A national supermarket chain that charged $1.09 for the pound of flounder a year ago now charges $1.35.

Prices of the so-called luxury seafoods — crab, shrimp and lobster — also have risen sharply. Lobsters sell for $2.90 a pound on the Boston docks, and in New Orleans, the price of shrimp has risen from $1.25 a year ago to $1.65 now.

Before the devaluation, fish prices already were being forced up by declining supply, rising demand and increasing costs.

HHH plans to counter milk bill

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., said Friday he wants to protect consumers from a 2-to-3-cent-a-quart increase in milk prices during the coming year by legislating a 1-cent hike.

Humphrey, criticizing the administration's announcement Thursday of a 75 per cent of parity milk support price for the year beginning April 1, said the Senate Agriculture Committee will open hearings Thursday on his bill to push the support to 85 per cent of parity.

If his legislation pushing supports on manufacturing-grade milk to $5.99 per hundred-weight is adopted, Humphrey estimated consumers would pay 1 cent a quart more for fluid milk.

Rep. Edwards' unit catches hot issues

By GIL BAILEY
From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Two of the hottest issues before the Congress — constitutional amendments on abortion and antischool busing — have been assigned to a subcommittee chaired by one of the most liberal members of the house, Rep. Don Edwards, D-San Jose, Calif.

Edwards' civil rights oversight subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee was assigned constitutional amendments on both subjects by Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee.

UNDER House rules both amendments must clear the subcommittee before they get to the full committee and the floor. Most of the thousands of the bills and constitutional amendments proposed each year die in subcommittee.

"Constitutional amendments are extremely serious business," said Edwards. "Everyone will be given their chance to be heard."

Proposed constitutional amendments on abortion range from one proposing an almost absolute right to abortion, authored by Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., to "right to life" amendments which categorically forbid abortion.

Numerous antibusing amendments have also been presented in the house.

Both issues are considered lawyers "nightmares" because more than one section of the constitution is involved. In addition both issues have been decided by the United States Supreme Court, which makes a constitutional amendment mandatory to change the present law.

The assignment of the two possible amendments to the Edwards subcommittee results from its jurisdiction over civil and constitutional rights. The "Equal Rights Amendment for Women," now before the states, came from the same subcommittee last year.

The committee has a five-Democrat, four-Republican. Two of the Republicans are considered liberal to moderate, the other two conservative.

On the abortion issue the swing vote may be that of Rep. Robert Drinan, a liberal antiwar Jesuit priest.

Edwards as chairman of the subcommittee also will have a powerful influence on the committee's activities.

He promised thorough hearings and said the subcommittee will meet soon to consider amendment-handling procedures. Edwards also said pending legislation, including a narcotics treatment bill, and a bill on arrest records probably will take first priority.

THE 58-year-old Edwards has served in Congress since 1963 from a heavily Democratic district in Santa Clara County, Calif., one of the fastest growing areas in the country. He is divorced.

The president of the largest independent title insurance company in the state, Edwards' legal background is in real estate law although he served as an FBI agent before World War II naval service.

He has not authored legislation on either abortion or busing issues but he noted that he has voted against antibusing legislation.

He did not comment Friday on either of the issues now before his subcommittee, saying such comments would be premature before full hearings.

The Edwards subcommittee has been almost without major controversy with committee reports receiving the signature of both Republicans and Democrats.

EDWARDS, who has been cited for his personal charm in Congress and out, has retained personal friendships with almost all of the Congress despite his liberal stance. As a subcommittee chairman he has worked closely with his Republican members.

The ranking Republican on the subcommittee Rep. Charles Wiggins, R-Calif., opposed Edwards on the Equal Rights for Women Amendment but supported Edwards in his successful opposition to the prayer in schools amendment.

Rep. Robert McClory, R-Ill., the second-ranking Republican, strongly supported the Equal Rights Amendment. Two new Republican members, Reps. M. Caldwell Butler, R-Va., and Trent Lott, R-Miss., are both expected to take a conservative stance.

THE Democrats on the committee include the liberal Rep. Jerome Waldie, D-Calif., an announced candidate for governor of that state in the 1974 election, and liberal Reps. Paul S. Sarbanes, D-Md., and Charles Rangel, D-N.Y.

With Edwards' promise of full hearings on the amendments, early action in the House is unlikely on either issue.

Book really has surprise ending

FAIRFAX, Va. (UPI) — A seventh-grade Fairfax County, Va., girl found out shockingly this week that you can't tell a book by its cover — or even by its first 96 pages.

The Washington Post reported Friday that a paperback book called "A Short Season," billed on its cover as "The Love Story of 1972," was inadvertently combined with more than two chapters of "The Sensuous Woman" by a New York bookbinder.

"A Short Season" is the story of pro football star Brian Piccolo, who died of cancer at the peak of his career with the Chicago Bears.

The book was provided to the girl through the county school system's bulk purchase of paperbacks from a voluntary reading enrichment program.

After the girl got 96 pages through the book, school officials said, she began reading "How to Drive a Man to Ecstasy" and "How to Tell a Good Bed Prospect."

"This is very embarrassing and we're very sorry it happened," said Robbie S. Robinson of the Western Publishing Co., of New York, which bound both books for the Dell Publishing Co.

Dell said there were less than 100 hybrid copies of its two popular books. "The Sensuous Woman," by "J," tells women how to improve their sex life.

Rescuer recalls how jetliner's pilot died

MIAMI (UPI) — "He looked at me and said, 'I am going to die,' Don J. Schneck said. "I argued the point with him. I wanted to keep him going."

But the young Coast Guardsman lost his argument with a dying pilot in the mangled cockpit of an Eastern Air Lines jetliner Dec. 29, he told a National Transportation Safety Board hearing Friday.

SCHNECK, 24, an aviation mechanic, was one of the final witnesses to testify at the hearing into the crash of the huge jetliner in the Everglades west of Miami in which 101 persons died.

Chairman John Reed said when the hearing adjourned that in trying to assess the causes of the crash, second worst single-plane disaster in the United States, the investigators would concentrate on the areas of "flight crew operation and autopilot operation."

Schneck was among the first rescuers to reach the crash scene in the muck and sawgrass of the Everglades.

AFTER aiding two injured stewardesses, Schneck said, he crawled into the twisted debris of the flight deck and spotted copilot Arthur J. Stockstill. He was dead. Then he saw the pilot.

Capt. Robert A. Loft, 55, "I checked him. There was no bleeding but he had broken ribs," Schneck said. "He didn't seem to be really with it. His first move was to get out of the airplane — it's instinctive with all flight crewmen."

"I told him to lay still. I said, 'You made it this far. Hang on a little longer. We'll get you out.'"

"He looked at me and said, 'I am going to die.' "I argued the point with him. I wanted to keep him going."

SCHNECK then crawled into a "hell hole" below the flight deck in response to the cries of second officer Donal Repo and Eastern technician Angelo Donadeo, who had been checking a nose-landing gear when the plane plowed into the swamp.

Schneck said he climbed back into the cockpit again and "the pilot started moving around again." "He rolled over a chair and made an ungodly noise," Schneck said. "I knew he would suffer further injury. I put both my hands on his arms and talked to him very forcefully. He calmed down."

HE SAID an Army helicopter landed nearby and several men, a doctor among them, rushed to the cockpit section of the plane.

Law asked to bypass courts on oil pipeline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Interior Department asked Congress Friday for legislation that would circumvent a federal court ruling limiting right-of-way for the trans-Alaska oil pipeline, but said environmental questions should be left to the courts.

Deputy Undersecretary Jared G. Carter asked the Senate Interior Committee to approve an administration bill giving the interior secretary board authority to grant rights-of-way over public lands.

He said a Feb. 9 ruling by the U.S. Court of Appeals limiting the right-of-way to 54 feet was a threat not only to the Alaska pipeline but to other projects as well.

construction of the pipeline on grounds it would damage the Alaskan environment.

But Carter said the Interior Department was asking the Supreme Court to decide whether the National Environmental Policy Act has been met by plans for the trans-Alaska pipeline.

The same view also was expressed by Govt. William A. Egan of Alaska and spokesmen for the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., which seeks to build the multibillion-dollar pipeline.

EGAN, whose state has joined the government and the pipeline company in appealing the Court of Appeals decision, said Congress should not wait for the Supreme Court before acting on right-of-way legislation.

Egan said speedy action on the pipeline to carry oil from Prudhoe Bay to the Port of Valdez was needed to meet the national energy shortage, reduce U.S. dependence on foreign oil, and to help both Alaska and the Alaska natives who will share in the state's oil revenues.

Panel told Alaska oil could bolster dollar

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The president of Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. told a Senate committee Friday the daily production of two million barrels of Alaska North Slope crude oil by 1980 would reduce U.S. oil import requirements in that year by almost 20 per cent and the balance of payments deficit by at least $2 billion annually at current world prices.

E. L. Patton, who heads the firm organized to design, construct and operate the 789-mile trans-

Alaska crude oil pipeline, made the comment in testimony before the Senate Interior and Insular Affairs Committee. The committee is considering various legislative measures affecting rights-of-way across federally-owned lands.

Patton said existing limitations on rights-of-way across federally-owned lands will have to be changed or eliminated if modern oil and natural gas pipelines are to continue to be built and operated on the public lands.

Desegregation plan in jeopardy

ATLANTA (AP) — A long-awaited compromise in Atlanta's 15-year-old school desegregation suit may be in jeopardy because of a rift between local and national officials of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Lonnie King, president of the Atlanta NAACP, recognized as a principal architect of the compromise plan, said Friday he would still support it in spite of his suspension by the national office.

Roy Wilkins, executive director of the NAACP, said in New York earlier that the compromise violated NAACP desegregation policy. "It threatens irreparable harm to the association," he said. He suspended King and other officers in the Atlanta chapter.

The national office said the Atlanta compromise would provide for only minimum desegregation.

KING SAID he would not back down on his support of the plan, as he was asked to do by Wilkins. He said he had "overwhelming support" of his action from the black leadership in Atlanta.

Under the compromise, about 2,700 pupils would be bused, compared with up to 39,000 in previous suggestions.

Of more than 96,000 pupils in the Atlanta system, 78 per cent are black. Of 153 schools, 87 of them are 90 per cent or more black, and 19 are white, according to the city school board.

There have been many desegregation plans put into practice in recent years and the system is generally considered integrated.

However, a major problem is the flight of whites to the suburbs.

The latest plan went before the U.S. District Court Thursday, and the court agreed to withhold a decision for three weeks to give the NAACP officials a chance to try to work out their differences.

JOHN Haldeman, administrative aide in the school system, said that even if the compromise finally is approved, there is no assurance that the lawsuit would die.

"Anyone can bring it up again," he said. "And then, we have the metro lawsuit hanging over us."

He referred to a suit seeking to bus pupils across county lines and from one school system to another, similar to the Richmond, Va., desegregation case.

The proposed plan includes some all-black schools. Seven schools would be closed, two would be converted to junior high schools, and 54 others would be affected by the transfers.

"We'll still have some schools that are segregated," King said. "They'll be predominantly black. We have put too much of the desegregation burden on the pupils. It's time we got some adults other than teachers involved in the process."

Criticism of its hospitals unjustified, VA says

WASHINGTON — The Veterans Administration declared Friday that a congressional report describing conditions in veterans hospitals as poor "seems deliberately designed to mislead the American people."

VA Administrator Donald E. Johnson defended the operation of the 168 VA hospitals. He also criticized news reports based on the study, which was made by investigators for the House Appropriations Committee.

A four-page statement released by the VA said news accounts "produced headlines around the country declaring that VA hospital care was deteriorating and dangerous to patients."

Johnson asserted, "This is utter nonsense. It is an untruth that is damaging to the morale of our dedicated hospital staffs and to present and prospective veteran-patients."

FAMOUS FOR SERVICE

Billy's kind of funeral

House, being invited to lunch there by Presidents Wilson and Coolidge.

Industrialists along his campaign trail were invariably strong supporters. The owner of the Cambria Steel Works in Pittsburgh said in 1915 that Billy was worth a quarter of a million dollars to his firm "because of the increased efficiency of the men. They were steadier, produced more."

Inevitably, he was accused of being against trade unionists. He did say in one of his Des Moines sermons "You can't raise the standard of morals by raising wages." It seems only fair to suggest that this by itself is not necessarily a call to hold down wages, but a philosophical position which can be (and is) argued today. One can also find such Sunday quotes as "... in these days when man has become a mere cog in a human machine to grind out dividends."

His vantage point, it should be considered, proceeded always from religion and the Bible. Thus "There is no difference between capital and labor that can't be settled by the principles laid down by the Son of God ... There is no dispute that cannot be driven from the world by the practical manifestation of Christianity."

He was one tough cookie to pin down and characterize with finality.

He was certainly a Bible fundamentalist, who could say: "You cannot compromise. There is no intermediate ground between heaven and hell. You can either reject or accept God. If you do not accept Him you reject, Him and you go to hell. There is no halfway house between the places."

Yet he was not a Bible literalist. "What difference does it make," he told his Des Moines audience, "whether the fire in hell is literal, or the fittest emblem God could employ to describe to us the terrible punishment? Do you believe the streets of heaven are paved with literal gold? Do you believe that? When we talk about gold we all have high and exalted ideas. How do you know but that God said 'streets of gold' in order to convey to us the highest ideals our minds could conceive of beauty? It doesn't make any difference whether the gold on the streets of heaven is literal or not. What difference does it make whether the fire in hell is literal or not? ... You are a fool to test the reality of it. It must be an awful place if God loved us well enough to give Jesus to keep us out of there. I don't want to go there. Though a fellow told me to just the other day ..."

Nor was he, perhaps to someone's surprise, one for "holy roller" type of emotionalism. In Des Moines, he told of a meeting in Elgin, Ill. during which a man in the front row put his head between his hands and groaned, and then fell down in the sawdust and rolled there. Related Sunday: "I said to a local minister up on the stage, name of Farnelow, 'Farnelow, what's the matter with that man?' He's getting religion," the preacher replied. "It looks to me more like he's getting a stomach ache."

emotions to boiling with music and passionate oratory, and convince them that all poverty, all injustice, all starvation, is due to drinking, dancng, card playing and a refusal to say 'I am for Christ.'"

The Nation magazine said sorrowfully: "Success is the one touchstone for religion too, and the only success worth having is shouting thousands. That old notion about the Lord being in the still, small voice is absurdly obsolete."

But this is what a Des Moines pastor who disliked Billy Sunday had to say after the crusade: "Why, my dear sir, the man has trampled all over me and my theology. He has kicked my teachings up and down the platform like a football. He has outraged every idea that I have had regarding my sacred profession. But what does that count against the results he has accomplished? My congregation will be increased by hundreds. I didn't do it. Sunday did it. It is for me to humble myself and thank God for his help."

There can be no denying that Billy Sunday was many of the things his critics said he was. Transplanted, to today, he would seem an anachronism in many ways (not all). But, as he himself said in Des Moines, "I'm preaching for the age in which we live."

However one regards him, he was certainly a fascinating part of an evolving America, both reflecting and influencing his time. With all due respect to current evangelists, his like is not to be found for enormous zest, saltiness and originality.

Billy Sunday would undoubtedly be happy to "rest his case" with these reports in small Iowa newspapers. EMERSON: "When Mr. Sunday took the train to leave us, it looked as if the whole town had gone to the depot to see him off. His hands were shaken by everybody who could get to him. As the train started, hands and handkerchiefs were waved, and Gospel songs were sung. This continued until the train disappeared down the track...Our little town has never witnessed such

AS THE series on Billy Sunday comes to a close today, our thanks to all the kind people who planned or wrote in their own interesting recollections of the evangelist. Sorry we could not find the space to use all such.

WELCOMED—John and Dawn Hess

Biola grads to music staff at First Baptist

First Baptist Church, at 10th and Pine, has welcomed Mr. and Mrs. John Hess to the church staff and fellowship. John has been called as full time minister of music, and Dawn will be in charge of the junior choir.

The couple graduated from Biola College in La Mirada with a bachelor of music. John Hess has worked with "The Word of Life" program in New York, with Cap Haitien in Haiti, and has played organ for Leighton Ford Crusades, a Billy Graham organization.

For the past five years he has been organist and choir director at Brethren in Christ Church of Upland. The Hesses went with last year's Biola Choral Tour. Both have done choral arranging for Sing-Spiration. Mrs. Hess has studied with the chairman of the voice department at USC.

A reception will be held in honor of the couple following the Sunday night 7 p.m. service.

Briefly . . . Dat of' debbil amnesty, 40 days, POW's faith

In a lengthy editorial entitled "Amnesty, Forgiveness, and Mercy," Christianity Today, the foremost conservative evangelical magazine, states the following positions:

1. Those who "stood up to the government, refused to obey its summons, and went to jail . . . the most honorable among all those who opposed the Vietnam War . . . ought to be honored for their integrity; certainly they should not have to bear a criminal record for standing up for their convictions and taking the consequences instead of fleeing."

2. "Total and unconditional amnesty for deserters and draft evaders" as proposed by some churchmen, is not right or feasible. "Months or years after the fact it is virtually impossible to establish what a particular evader's true motivation may have been . . . to those who ARE willing to make restitution, we feel that a more reasonable and conciliatory opportunity for alternate service should be given than the jail term the President seems to presuppose. In the other cases, it would seem impossible to offer 'forgiveness.'"

"The state, for its part," concludes the editorial, "should recognize that ten years of undeclared war fought under mysterious conditions and for by no means fully convincing reasons have placed countless young men in a situation of great moral ambiguity. Therefore it should be willing to practice a good measure of mercy—as the President suggested before the November election that he would do—rather than impose the full penalties of the law in a position in which its own moral rectitude is not beyond question."

WITH THE coming of Lent, which runs for 40 days (excluding Sundays), it is interesting to notice how often the figure 40 recurs importantly in the Bible. The children of Israel wandered for 40 years in the wilderness. It rained for 40 days and 40 nights when Noah built his ark. Moses spent 40 days and nights atop Mount Sinai when he received the 10 commandments. And 40 hours elapsed from the moment Jesus died on the cross until His hour of resurrection. Finally, the period of resurrection appearances lasted 40 days before the ascension.

How the Lenten season was established at 40 days is not really clear. In the first years of Christianity it originally lasted only a day or two, and later a week. It was lengthened to 40 days during the fifth century, and that time period is generally connected with the 40 days that Jesus fasted in the wilderness before beginning His ministry.

Many ministers today feel the season is too long to sustain meaning for most people. The pull of tradition is strong, however, especially at a time when meaningful connections to the past seem to be under fire. The instinct to hold onto forms of the past is understandable, and perhaps is valid. So long as it is understood that the time span of 40 days is nothing "holy" in itself, but was made in a different era for different people, and there is nothing "sinful" about advocating a change.

Did you ever contribute anything to Church World Service? If you did (and if you didn't) you'll probably be pleased to know that 10,000 children are fed a hot meal daily in quake-shattered Managua through CWS. For many, it is the only substantial meal of the day. For others, it supplements a still scanty diet.

CLINT FOWLER, manager at radio station KGER, writes to tell how moved he — and so many others — were when the first POWs landed and made their statements "of faith in God and in their country that enabled them to endure the ordeal."

"Yes, to me this is one of the greatest demonstrations of Americanism I have ever witnessed," Fowler says, "and it is my fervent prayer that it is men like these with their demonstration of their faith in God which will bring our nation back together as a nation, once

MRS. JOAN WALSH wipes a tear as her brother, William Downey, talks to newsmen of the expected release of their brother, John Downey, who has been held captive in a mainland Chinese prison for more than 20 years. Mrs. William Downey is at right at the conference held Friday at the New Britain General Hospital where the Korea war POW's mother, Mrs. Mary T. Downey, 75, is in critical condition.

family to tell her the news.

Downey, now 43, and Richard Fecteau, who lives in Lynn, Mass., boarded a plane in Seoul, South Korea, en route to Tokyo on Nov. 29, 1952, during the Korean War. Both were said to be civilian employees of the Army.

The plane never arrived, and after an air search failed to find any trace of it, U.S. authorities said it must have wandered off course and been shot down over North Korea. Both men were presumed lost.

BUT TWO years later, Peking Radio announced the pair had been convicted of espionage and that Downey had been sentenced to life imprisonment.

ment and Fecteau to 20 years.

The U.S. State Department denounced the Peking regime for keeping the two men's imprisonment secret while the two countries negotiated in Geneva for the release of imprisoned Americans.

Although Nixon recently identified Downey as an employee of the Central Intelligence Agency, the government for years insisted he was a civilian employee of the Army and identified him as that in biographical data distributed Friday by the White House. The fact sheet said he was hired in June 1951, immediately after graduation from Yale University with a degree in English.

Informed sources, however, told The Associated Press that Downey and Fecteau were CIA operatives and flew over China to drop intelligence agents into the country on behalf of the Nationalist Chinese government on Taiwan.

PEKING claimed they confessed to being agents assigned to train and equip Chinese agents.

When U.S.-Chinese relations took a turn for the better in 1971, Fecteau's sentence was commuted, and he was freed to return to the United States just before Christmas. Peking said Downey's sentence also was commuted — to five years from the date of the announcement.

In announcing the imminent release of the two pilots, the White House identified Smith as a 38-year-old native of Roodhouse, Ill., a career officer who was divorced by his wife in 1970.

"It is not known whether Maj. Smith knows of the divorce," the White House said. "The couple had three children, the youngest born after Smith's capture."

FLYNN was identified as 35, a native of Houston, Minn., who joined the Navy in 1958 and was commissioned two years later. His wife and two children now live in Colorado Springs, Colo. Flynn was bombardier aboard an A6 jet flying from the aircraft carrier Constellation when the plane was shot down over China's Quangsi Province.

Most information about Downey and Fecteau during their years of captivity came from occasional family visits that China permitted and a series of radio broadcasts, the first in 1954.

SUSPECT IN KNIFINGS ARRESTED

ed in guarded condition by officials at the hospital — slightly improved from earlier reports.

She was the second stabbing victim within 20 minutes in the downtown area, police said.

At 2:05 a.m., police were dispatched to Locust Avenue between First Street and Broadway. On a sidewalk they found the body of Albert Lester Scott, 60, of 231 E. Fourth St.

OFFICERS said Scott had been stabbed a half-dozen times in the back.

His wallet, still in his pocket contained about $60, said police.

When patrol officers were called minutes later to the scene of the second stabbing, in front of 250 Pacific Ave., they recognized the victim as an employee of the Sip-N-Bite Bar, next door at 248 Pacific.

Investigators said the two patrol officers had checked the bar at 2 a.m., and were walking out when Miss Dozal came to the rear door and asked the bartender if she could use the phone to ask for a ride to her home.

"Sorry Jackie, go somewhere else and make your call. We're closed," the bartender answered, according to police.

They said she responded, "Thanks a lot. Don't be surprised if I don't come to work tomorrow."

When the patrol officers returned a half-hour later, they reported that a passerby had torn off his shirt and wrapped it around the woman's neck to stem the flow of blood from her wound.

THE PASSERBY told officers that the victim had managed to mumble, "It was a blond dude" while he gave her first aid.

The officers then saw the blond Moxley in the crowd, investigators said. Moxley's attempts to explain his bloody clothes were "incoherent," they added, and he was arrested. No knife was found, they added.

Under questioning, said detectives, Moxley admitted that he was a U.S. Marine, absent without leave.

Detectives said that after phoning military officials, they received a call from a physician at San Diego Naval Hospital. Service officials at the hospital refused comment to the press, but homicide Det. Bob following the San Diego call that believed the suspect may recently have escaped from a military mental facility.

MOXLEY is expected by police to be arraigned Tuesday on the murder and attempted murder charges.

About five hours after Moxley was arrested, police launched a city-wide dragnet for suspects in another killing.

Investigators said Patrick Horgan, the 59-year-old owner of Horgan Pharmacy, at 1403 Cherry Ave., was shot and killed by robbers inside his store.

Police, responding to gunshot reports, found the pharmacist lying on the floor with bullet wounds in his head and stomach. Horgan, of 1729 Stanton Place, was rushed to St. Mary's Hospital, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Suspects in the shooting were identified only as three male Negroes in their 20's who were seen running from the store and driving off in a 1963 or 1964 red convertible with a white top, officers said.

THE FIRST in the series of killings occurred shortly after 1 p.m. Thursday, when 33-year-old Lucien Favre, of 6562 Brayton Ave., was shot to death in the street in front of his home.

Off-duty Long Beach Officer Robert Wilson, who lives nearby, arrested Favre's 34-year-old wife Marjorie on suspicion of murder minutes later, police said.

Officers, attendant shot dead

SAN BERNARDINO — Two law officers and a service station attendant were shot to death Friday by a man who had been driving the wrong way on a highway west of here, authorities said.

The alleged assailant was wounded and captured and booked for investigation of murder.

The dead were identified as highway patrolman Larry Wetterling, 38; sheriff's Lt. Alfred Stewart, 39; and Robert Leo Jenkins, 38, the service station employee.

The shooting spree began at the summit of Cajon Pass on Interstate 15 about 8 a.m. when Wetterling caught up with the wrong-way driver while he was changing a tire.

"A truck driver parked on the opposite side of the freeway said he saw a struggle between the officer and the suspect in the front seat of the suspect's car and the officer was thrown out onto the ground and shot," said CHP Lt. Dave Helsel.

The San Bernardino sheriff's office and the highway patrol said the suspect, identified as Jerry James Youngblood, 30, of St. Louis, who had taken Wetterling's pistol, drove to the Highway 138 overpass, where he wheeled in a U-turn lost control and smashed into an embankment.

Then, officers said, he ran about 400 yards to Odom's service station and shot Jenkins in the head while the attendant was talking on the telephone.

Stewart and Dep. Dist. Atty. John Hardy, driving to Barstow for a meeting, heard the alarm on Stewart's car radio and drove into the station.

"I think we're being ambushed," the sheriff's office heard Stewart shout over his radio.

Pentagon Papers' harm to U.S. denied by Bundy

United Press International

McGeorge Bundy, former top adviser to Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, testified Friday disclosure of certain military information in the Pentagon Papers would not have helped a foreign power nor harmed the United States.

Bundy, who had the job of special assistant for national security from 1961 to 1966, appeared for the defense in its efforts to acquit Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo of espionage, theft and conspiracy charges.

THE 53-year-old Bundy, now head of the Ford Foundation, was one of the key White House advisers at the time President Johnson committed hundreds of thousands of American soldiers to Vietnam, and has sometimes been called an "architect" of U.S. Vietnam policy.

Defense attorney Charles Nesson directed Bundy's attention to a 1968 recommendation by the Joint Chiefs of Staff to send 206,000 additional American troops to Vietnam.

"Do you have an opinion as to whether release of this document in 1969 (when Ellsberg took the papers) could have been of advantage to a foreign power?" Nesson asked.

"Yes, I do not think so," Bundy replied.

"Do you have an opinion as to whether release of this document in 1969 could have injured the United States?"

"Yes, I do not think so."

BUNDY went on to explain that the request for additional American forces in Vietnam was the most important element of the document, but that as a matter of fact that same information became public shortly after Gen. Earl Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs, submitted it in February, 1968, when it was published in the New York Times and other journals.

Other information in the report, such as estimates of enemy forces and enemy casualties, were not of importance a year later, Bundy said, because "events had overtaken them and the information would not have been helpful to an enemy."

The defense said its next witness would be Arthur Schlesinger Jr., one of members of the top circles of the Kennedy administration.

NIXON VETO THREATS

create additional apparatus in the federal bureaucracy.

"And that makes it more difficult to make the government more responsive to the people," he said.

The 45-minute briefing also included an indication from Ehrlichman that the Nixon administration intends to practice some flexibility in the 5.5 per cent guideline that it has set for wage increases this year.

"The only magic number" in the administration's wage-price philosophy, he said, is the target of reducing the rate of inflation to 2.5 per cent by the end of 1973.

Although he did field a number of questions regarding his interview with the Federal Bureau of Investigation on the break-in at Democratic headquarters last year the bulk of Ehrlichman's appearance dealt with the continuing conflict between the White House and the Congress over spending.

Both Nixon and the legislators have been competing over the last few months for public support on that issue, both with an eye toward the 1974 elections.

It is the President's position, and consequently the position of his public spokesmen such as Ehrlichman, that congressional spending habits tend to be irresponsible and inflationary, resulting either in higher taxes or higher prices and employment lags.

Congress, on the other hand, has questioned the President's constitutional right to thwart its legislative thrusts, insisting that Nixon has negated the entire process by establishing and executing his own, personal spending priorities.

Indian talks bog down

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. — Talks aimed at converting an "agreement in principle" between the government and militant Indians into an end to the armed confrontation at Wounded Knee bogged down Friday.

An Indian attorney said both sides initially agreed the Indians would leave the village on Monday, but the Justice Department tried to move up the departure time to Sunday and the Indians refused.

"We're nowhere right now," the lawyer, Ramon Roubideaux, told newsmen Friday night. He blamed federal officials for not understanding the Indians.

comment on the talks, which were to continue today. Clergymen, federal officials and lawyers representing the American Indian Movement (AIM) conferred in nearby Pine Ridge Friday afternoon and night.

"INTERIOR Department keeps pushing, and the Justice Department is insensitive," Roubideaux said. He said both sides had agreed the Indians would leave Wounded Knee Monday, "but Justice pushed it up another day. We agreed on Monday, but the written statement from Justice Department said Sunday."

The Indians who took over Wounded Knee 11 days ago planned to hold a mass meeting of older Indians on the reservation on Sunday and did not want to cancel the gathering, another Indian lawyer said.

"The whole problem is a failure of communication... the Indians don't understand all this bureaucratic language," Roubideaux said.

He said several points were agreed on during Friday's talks, but he did not elaborate.

While the exact substance of the talks was not known, one key issue appeared to be whether the 250 Indians occupying Wounded Knee would be arrested upon leaving the village.

Work-oriented curricula 'in' with today's colleges

By RALPH HINMAN Jr.
Education Editor

Vocationally oriented programs are "in," but once-favored liberal arts and humanities may be waning in popularity among today's college generation, a U.S. Civil Service campus recruiter said Friday in Long Beach.

"What we're seeing today is a shift toward vocational education," Don Robbins said. He spoke before a joint meeting of the Los Angeles Federal Executive Board and the College-Federal Council of Southern California in Allen Center at the Naval Station.

"The old work ethic definitely is in," Robbins said, "and the humanities and liberal arts are in jeopardy unless they become attuned to the new ways."

Robbins, who heads West Coast campus recruiting activities, suggested that work-study programs should be added in all institutions. "It should be compulsory rather than elective," he said.

Similar comments were made by Chancellor Ivan Hinderaker of UC Riverside.

"If any of you (in government) have any jobs open for students, let us know," Hinderaker said. Referring to some dissent-torn colleges of the late 1960s, he noted: "There's nobody on the sidewalks anymore objecting to the presence of Dow Chemical recruiters."

Hinderaker said higher education is in a state of "shell-shock due to the leveling off of enrollments and financial support." He added that shifting academic patterns also contribute to the general uneasiness.

"It's not how you got into this state of shock that's important," he said, "but how you get out of it."

Hinderaker proposed that the federal government and higher education explore ways to help each other "by determining which curricula will best help our students and the government."

He suggested creation of a student-faculty-federal council "to determine those programs most advantageous to all concerned."

Other speakers included Joseph W. Lowell, Jr., U.S. Civil Service Commission deputy director for training; Dr. Norman Garrett, College-Federal Council chairman; Vice Chancellor Stervill W. Edmunds of UC Riverside; and Associate Dean Murray R. Lewis of Santa Monica City College.

Participants were welcomed by Rear Adm. James W. Williams, 11th Coast Guard District commandant and chairman of the Los Angeles Federal Executive Board.

Business mag buys DC9 jet

By HERB SHANNON
Staff Writer

Forbes Inc., a New York-based business magazine publishing firm with extensive interests in the U.S. and abroad, is the latest corporation to order the McDonnell Douglas DC9 twinjet transport as a flying office.

A custom interior including an executive suite, conference room, lounge chairs and sleeping accommodations will be installed following delivery of the DC9 by Douglas Aircraft Co. of Long Beach in October.

Aviation Management Services, Inc., a Stamford, Conn. consulting firm, assisted Forbes in negotiations to purchase the new transport. Douglas spokesmen said the order had been included in the previously announced total of 737 DC9 sales to date.

Mechanically, the corporate version of the DC9 is identical to the more than 650 sister twinjets in operation on three continents by more than 40 airlines and the U.S. Air Force. This provides readily available spare parts and expert service at virtually any airport in the world.

Corporate versions of the DC9 have sufficient fuel capacity to fly intercontinental ranges. The aircraft can be operated from small, remote airports because it carries its own boarding stairs, air conditioning and engine starting systems.

Heroin addict admits 13 armed robberies

By CHUCK CHEATHAM
Staff Writer

A Whittier truck driver who admitted a $200-a-day heroin habit told Long Beach police Friday he had participated in 13 armed robberies in Long Beach and surrounding communities since early January.

Although Henry G. Garrison, 33, of 13515 Reis St., realized over $5,800 as his share of the stickups, he had only needle marks on his arms to show for his efforts, police said.

Garrison was turned over to federal authorities for prosecution on charges that three of his robberies were those of the Long Beach Veteran's Hospital commissary, Jan. 30; the March 2 robbery of the Bank of America, 13415 Telegraph Road, Santa Fe Springs; and the Feb. 2 holdup of the Whittier Post Office.

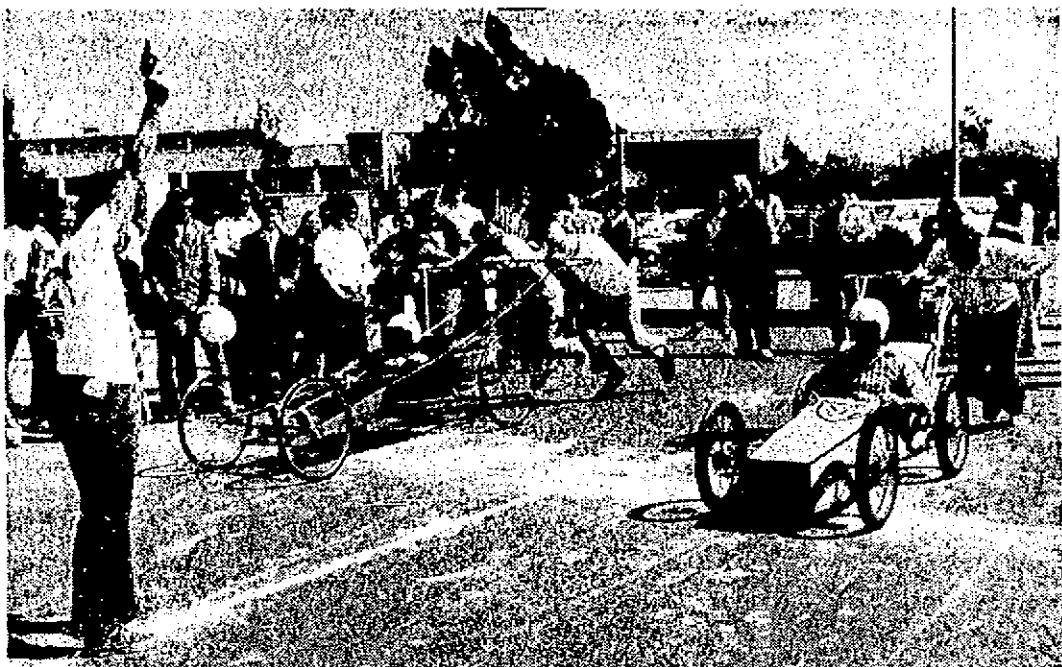

Garrison told robbery detective Sgts. Jack W. McMahon, Jerry M. Heath, Rudolph R. Prell and William MacLymann that the take from the commissary was $3,000; from the bank, $1,350; and from the Post Office, $2,000 in cash and $40,000 in money orders.

The robbery detectives said all of the money orders were recovered in Garrison's home and that although he had a loaded revolver in his home, he offered no resistance.

LEAPING OFF THE STARTING LINE

With a burst of speed — and grunts and groans from their "powerplants" — two toilet racers begin their drag-race along a 150-yard strip at Long Beach State University Friday. Driver Al Gutierrez at the wheel of the Industrial Arts Club Special, left, piloted his entry to victory in this heat over the racer of Chi Gamma Iota, the Veterans' Club, and driver Tim Craig. Each vehicle was adorned with a porcelain toilet. The Sigma Chi fraternity entry emerged from the series of run-offs as winner in the 10th annual race sponsored by Theta Chi fraternity.

Fight on birth defects

3,000 seen taking part in March of Dimes walk

Community involvement will be a key feature of this year's 21-mile March of Dimes Walk-A-Thon in Long Beach and Lakewood to raise funds to combat birth defects.

About 3,000 persons are expected to take part in the March 17 walk, according to the sponsoring Long Beach/Lakewood Chapter of the March of Dimes.

"Community involvement" at all age levels will be stressed for the march. Participants will include about 35 senior citizens, five Marine Corps distance runners, service club members, Scouting organizations, youngsters, and YMCA members.

Check points along the route will be staffed with student nurses from Long Beach State University, and the route will be patrolled by members of the Long Beach Explorer Search and Rescue Post and the Radio Amateur Civil Emergency Service.

The Walk-A-Thon will begin at Bixby Park, Cherry Avenue and First Street at 8 a.m. and will end there at 4 p.m. Participants' "Walk Cards" will be stamped at check-points along the route to verify their mileage.

The walkers will be sponsored by contributors who will guarantee each participant certain sums of money for each mile walked. After the Walk-A-Thon participants will return to their sponsors to get their pledges or checks to the March of Dimes.

A drawing, with prizes of a portable black-and-white television set and a bicycle, will be held for participants who return their pledges before the April 2 deadline, a Walk-A-Thon spokesman said.

With the virtual elimination of polio, the March of Dimes has concentrated its research program on hereditary and environmental causes of birth defects.

Funds raised by the Walk-A-Thon will provide research, treatment and education in the battle against birth defects.

About 900 persons took part in last year's march which raised $16,000.

Chapter programs include aid to birth defect patients who can not pay their medical expenses, a Genetic Counseling service at Memorial Hospital, and a grant for the orthopedic care of children afflicted with birth defects.

Further information on the Walk-A-Thon and March of Dimes activities is available from the chapter offices at 1412 E. Wardlow Road.

L.B. griddler pleads innocent in burglary

A 24-year-old Long Beach State University football player Friday pleaded innocent to a burglary charge when he appeared before Superior Court Judge John A. Arguelles.

The court appointed Dep. Public Defender Joel S. Peck to represent the defendant, Davis Lee Beasley, who said he lacked funds to hire a private attorney.

Arguelles allowed Beasley to remain free on his own recognizance and ordered him to return March 30 for pretrial hearings.

Beasley is accused in connection with the burglary last June of a Long Beach apartment occupied by Ted Dickson, a television shop employee, and Dickson's brother, Vaughn. Police said $1,500 in stereo equipment was taken.

Another LBSU football player, Kenneth Leonard Walker, 22, of 1108 Olive Ave., is awaiting sentencing April 4 for possession of about $1,000 in stereo equipment taken from the Dickson apartment. Police said Walker, who pleaded guilty last Wednesday, sold the loot to a pawnshop.

Walker is free on his own recognizance.

Kite Festival is NOT today

The All-City Kite Festival in Long Beach will not be held today, as has been erroneously reported in some radio, television and newspaper announcements.

The Kite Festival, which is sponsored by the Long Beach Recreation Department, will be held Saturday, March 24, from 11 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. on the beach at the foot of Junipero Avenue.

Cleanup squad set to do work at San Pedro site

A neighborhood cleanup squad will meet at 2 p.m. Sunday at 328 N. Centre St. San Pedro, to spruce up a condemned, vacant dwelling at that address.

The small house on the lot and the grounds around the building have become an eyesore, a spokesman for the group said Friday.

Building inspectors tagged the property last September, the spokesman said, but it has since been used as a loitering place for vagrants.

The cleanup squad charged that rats infest the premises and that attempts by neighbors to correct the property's dilapidated condition have met only delays.

Hearing date set for port exemption claims

Permit exemption requests from the Long Beach Harbor Department and a waterfront developer will be considered by the South Coast Regional Conservation Commission when it meets in Torrance at 3 p.m. Monday.

Several other claims for exemption are on the agenda for the meeting in the City Hall council chambers, 3031 Torrance Blvd.

Exemption claims presented to the 12-member commission by the Harbor Department involve a container landing and unloading terminal; an automobile import terminal; a maintenance and materials yard; a sanitary sewer system; and a shipping terminal expansion.

The Harbor Department also will ask exemption from compliance with the conditions of the Coastal Conservation Act of 1972 during the construction of an Exxon Corporation supertanker terminal at the former Pierpoint Landing. The construction is already well under way.

The developer, Marina Pacifica, is seeking an exemption which would permit the continuation of plans for a condominium complex and shopping center. The complex will be linked by waterways to the Alamitos Bay recreational area.

Other exemption claims on the commission agenda are from developers planning or building in Redondo Beach, Sunset Beach, Newport Beach, Laguna Niguel, Santa Monica, Villa Marina Shopping Center in Marina del Rey and the Venice area.

GARDENING

DIMORPHOTHECA . . . African cape daisy

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

One wonders sometimes how in the world the dimorphothea (an annual single daisy-like plant with flowers of rose, apricot-orange, golden yellow, salmon, white, and sulphur yellow that grows a foot tall) ever got such an odd name. Well, we looked it up in Taylor's Garden Dictionary and learned that (dy-mor-fō-thee-ka) is from the Greek for achene in reference to the technical fruit character. Achene (a-keen) is a dry one-seeded fruit that doesn't split. A typical example for instance: the seeds on the surface of a strawberry fruit. Common names for this plant are African or Cape Daisy.

The reason why we're interested in telling you about this plant is because such annuals grow easily from seeds. They are best when sown in sunny areas for their color and where a gardener doesn't want a lawn or ground cover. They can be sown from seed just about the year round.

PERSONALLY, we wouldn't want to just water the bare soil, then a day later scratch it and sow the seeds haphazardly. Water the soil well and a day or so later spread a half inch to an inch of some form of organic material, except peat moss. Work it into the soil about two inches deep, then rake the soil over smooth and even. Mix the seeds with some manure or other fine organic material and sow the seeds. This mixture will help the seeds to scatter more uniformly. The soil then is lightly raked and sprinkled well — without puddling. The planting should be then sprinkled daily like one would a newly seeded lawn until two true leaves develop and then watered deeper but only as needed.

HERE'S an excellent explanation that backs up our recommendation why gardeners should plant petunias early, like now.

The major air pollutant (worldwide) is sulphur dioxide — it destroys the chlorophyll-bearing cells of plants. It causes white areas to develop between the veins of a healthy plant. The most popular and colorful garden annual, the petunia, is also affected and so has been evaluated on its tolerance and sensitivity to ozone.

THERE is a benefactor, a commonly used growth retardant, SADH, (succinic acid 2,2-dimethyl hydrazide), that may effectively be used to reduce the plant's sensitivity to this common pollutant, according to reports by USDA's Agricultural Research Service. Recent evaluations on the varying ozone count levels on 65 petunia varieties show that the SADH can reduce the plant's sensitivity to air pollution. Most tolerant of the petunias are Capri, Fire Gleam, Pink Joy, Popeye and Purple Plum. This is the first time the Agricultural Research Service has evaluated a large number of varieties and rated them for tolerance and sensitivity to ozone.

Single-flowered, spreading petunias seem to tolerate the smog better when planted in early spring because they gradually become accustomed to the increased amount of summer smog. Some gardeners like the spicy fragrance of the blossoms and cut the flowers for table decoration. Petunias in pots (when tips are pinched to force more bushiness) are desirable for a bright sunny patio. Also, the pots can be sunk into the ground when color is needed quickly.

THOSE who didn't plant pansies earlier and still would like to, it's not too late, because they'll continue to flower into the hot weather season. Calendulas and Iceland poppies too, furnish lots of interim color before the annual flower bed is replanted with summer annuals.

Lawns need deep waterings instead of superficial sprinkling for sturdier and deeper root growth. Four to six inches is the recommended depth for watering. Wise gardeners feed lawns at least four times a year. A turf food containing a pre-emerge herbicide inhibits and kills crab grass and winter blue grass. Many of us know that there are masses of weed seeds that have already scattered from the annual blue grass. The turf herbicide takes care of them, too, so they won't sprout late into the fall. Such a turf fertilizer combination can be used for blade grass lawn, or dichondra. But be sure to check with your nurseryman.

Jobs for gardeners

St. Augustine, bermuda, and hybrid bermuda . . . lawns should be scalped practically to the ground. Scalping means to mow the lawn shorter after each time the roller is adjusted to drop the cutting bar lower. Hard-packed lawn soil can then be spiked. Some professional gardeners verticut such matted lawns, instead.

The lawn is then watered well, and fertilized when new visible growth has sprouted forth. A popular landscape designer-horticulture teacher friend of our's, Eddie King, recommends that hybrid bermuda should be regularly mowed to about 1/4 inch. Such lawns need more watering when thirsty.

Plant Clinic

By Joe Littlefield

Q.—Please send me the right name of chayote. Does it come in seeds or plants and where can I get them? Would prefer the seeds. Mrs. Frances Cable 138 W. 223rd St., Carson, 90745.

A.—Cha-yo'te is the common name. The botanical name is sechium (seek-i-um) edule. The chayote may be started from seed—but the whole one-seeded fruit itself is planted with the stem end a bit above ground level. Burpee Seed Company of Riverside doesn't list it in their catalog. You might write them to see if they can locate some for you. Or—perhaps some of our column readers may have some which they'd be glad to sell or give to you.

Q.—Kindly tell me what ails this leaf. The tree was recently planted in the yard but seemed water logged from the recent rains and poor drainage in El Dorado. Would spray help? Roland Snyder 3540 Marina Ave., Long Beach 90808

A.—You're right Roland! It could be too much water plus poor drainage. Spraying will not help. Those slightly raised brown spots on under side of the leaf plus brown spots showing through leaves means a systemic condition within the leaf. One of such conditions can be brought on, as you mentioned by erratic watering. I do hope you dug a considerably larger hole than the root size, and mixed at least up to two parts of an organic-humus material (but not a f-i-n-e humus material), with two to three parts of soil before you planted. Controlled watering as soil dries is the answer. If drainage is as poor as you say, rent a soil auger and drill four three-to-four-inch holes about five inches deep. Drill one just beyond the plant root and the three others equidistant (but in a circle two feet away from the edge of the plant hole) and fill them with pea-size gravel up to two inches of ground level. Fill the rest with the soil mixture.

We know the apple well, or perhaps we should say we did know it, for it has indeed disappeared. However, in our section it was called "pig-nose." It was some kind of a hybrid. But you can still get Country Gentlemen and Evergreen corn, and a month ago we saw five vendors of chestnuts in one block in New York City. The stickers seem to relish them.

Reagan denies right to strike on public jobs

SACRAMENTO—College professors and other public employees should give up tenure, civil service and job security if they want the right to strike, Gov. Reagan said Friday.

The Republican governor told the Academic Senate of the California State University and Colleges that he is irrevocably opposed to collective bargaining, arbitration or strikes by any public employees—including college professors.

"If someone chooses to work for the people, for the public instead of a profit-making enterprise, then he has to give up some things," Reagan said.

He said if public employees want the right to strike, "then you have to cancel out civil service, tenure and some of the other things" such as job security which public employment provides.

Reagan said collective bargaining "eventually involves the right to strike and you cannot strike against the people."

He added that creating an arbitration board would give it rights superior to the authority of publicly elected officials.

An arbitration board "does not have the accountability and responsibility" of elected officials, and that responsibility cannot be given away, Reagan said.

"WHEN YOU SAY, 'an impartial view' (by an arbitrator), when you take it all the way down, you mean less informed," Reagan said.

"We have to consider as one of our priorities, the taxpayer himself," Reagan said. He added that an arbitrator may not take into account the need to limit the burden on taxpayers.

Speaking on strikes by public employees, Reagan said, "Government cannot shut down the assembly line. Government has no choice but to go ahead and provide the services for the people. The people are the highest source you can go to."

Answering questions from the 75 professors attending the meeting, Reagan also said:

Students should be consulted on curriculum matters, but should not be allowed to have a final say. "If they know as much as the professors and administrators, they would have no need to go to college. They are there to learn."

His policy on so-called "affirmative action programs" to recruit minority faculty members "is to recruit without prejudice, and hire the best" without regard to race or any other criteria except merit.

His plan to consolidate seldom-used but expensive books in university libraries in two campuses—one in Northern California and one in the south—"just makes sense. The plan is still very much alive."

THE GOVERNOR, who has often been at odds with the professors over salaries, joked about Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post's criticism that he was being too generous in proposed pay hikes.

"The charge surprised me as much as it did you," he said.

Appearing before the same group Thursday, Post criticized as unfair Reagan's proposed average 7.5 per cent faculty raise in the CSUC system and average 5.4 per cent raise for University of California professors.

Reagan said it reflected his feeling that teaching is equally important as research. The higher raise proposed for the CSUC faculty was intended to correct a disparity which had boosted UC salaries higher because of prestigious research work, Reagan said.

Long terms of Regents Defended

By BOB SANDERS
Staff Writer

A former member of the Board of Regents of the University of California Friday emphatically criticized the proposal to cut the term of office of the regents from 16 years to 8.

Testifying before the Joint Committee on Master Plan for Higher Education meeting at UC Irvine, Philip L. Boyd, who served as a regent from 1957 to 1970 further recommended 16-year terms for the trustees of the California State College and University system.

"To disturb their (the regents) long term service is," Boyd told the committee, "in my opinion, unwise and threatens to destroy an established public confidence."

He said the regents need several years on the board to become familiar enough with the sprawling university system before they can actually function with efficiency in their jobs.

He added that the long term prevented any governor from being able to appoint a majority of the board during his term of office, even if he (the governor) were to serve two consecutive terms.

The committee held its second of a series of five scheduled hearings on the Irvine campus to allow local school officials and educators to make their attitudes known about the proposed revisions of the master plan for education.

Another Southern California meeting is scheduled March 23 at El Camino College in Torrance.

Prepaid health plans

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The county medical societies of Riverside, Orange and Ventura counties have proposed prepaid health plans designed to serve 92,000 patients, Medi-Cal Director Dwight Geduldig said Friday.

"I am delighted that the physicians are responding to the state's challenge to assume legal control and responsibility for the delivery of health care through the prepaid method of funding," Geduldig said.

Asked to quit in Board 'deal,' candidate says

Mrs. Mary Louise Jackson, 45, of 905 E. 19th St., a candidate for Board of Education, Long Beach Unified School District, has charged she was asked to withdraw so as not to disrupt an implied deal with the school administration involving later favorable consideration for a central district board candidate.

Mrs. Jackson, in a letter distributed to area churches and chambers of commerce, said the request was made to her in a meeting with Charles Eurie, coordinator of Poly High School Redevelopment; Mrs. Dale Clinton, City of Long Beach staff, and Ernest Faulkner, of the Human Resources Development Center.

For her withdrawal, she said, she would be given the first opening on a school advisory council. She said she was told at the meeting that an unidentified "they" were grooming someone from Long Beach's central district for the Board of Education and that her "premature candidacy might well disrupt the rapport they had established with the governing board of the district and its administration."

Mrs. Jackson charged in her letter that she was told that a current board member, not up for election this year, probably would resign shortly after the April 6 election and that "they" had been told their candidate "would be given serious consideration for the appointment to the board."

If the scheme is true, Mrs. Jackson said, it contributes to the board's reputation of being self-perpetuating and is an insult to the intelligence of the people of the district. Further, she said, such an appointed person would be a "token" member, "one guaranteed not to make waves."

Mrs. Jackson describes herself as a wife, mother, civic leader, youth and senior citizen liaison person. She attended the Universities of Chicago and Wichita, UCLA Extension and Long Beach City College.

Her organizational experience includes: Founder-instructor of the New Hope Baptist Preschool; teacher of religious education; delegate to the Los Angeles County Headstart program; Los Angeles County Mental Illness Board; advisory board of Long Beach Community Welfare Council; Neighborhood Adult Participation Project, hiring panel; past chairman, Senior Citizens Project WORK.

Traveland USA: first all-year recreational vehicle show

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Business-Financial Editor

It's not surprising at all that in the Southland, where outdoor shows are so successful year after year, that someone would ask the question: "Why not an all-year show?"

Jack Love, down Newport Beach way, not only asked the question but answered it as well.

The result: announcement of Traveland USA, a giant frontier-style outdoor show to be permanently established in Irvine.

To be built at the junction of the Santa Ana Freeway and Sand Canyon Avenue, the 30-acre facility promises to be the largest of its kind.

The price tag for construction: $2.5 million.

Construction, to begin immediately, according to Traveland USA president Love, is expected to be completed by late May.

At least 50 recreation vehicle display and sales lots will surround a five-acre park and "frontier town." Within the park will be lakes, waterfalls, an old mill, children's playground, picnic area and man-made waterfowl sanctuary, Love said.

The whole complex will be an authentic rendition of an old frontier town, even to the boardwalks and low-key lighting, Love added.

A 10,000-square-foot town building will include an hospitality area, restaurant, country store, hobby shops, sporting goods store and other recreation-oriented outlets.

Love, whose Traveland USA executive offices are at 4341 Birch St., Newport Beach, said there will be a 5,000-square-foot recreation vehicle accessory and parts store which will virtually stock everything needed by the RVer.

This store will adjoin a six-bay repair and service center for all types of recreational vehicles.

Each display lot, leased by RV dealers, will be set off by rustic redwood fencing and landscaping. Love expects more than 200 brands of vehicles, from motor homes to shell campers, to be on display.

The new frontier town also is to have its own financing facilities, he added.

The hospitality lounge, to cover 2,000 square feet, will be available for use by vehicle clubs, hobby groups, RV caravan clubs, sales meetings and lecture groups, it was said.

Some of the future attractions, Love predicted, will be fly-fishing demonstrations, lapidary shows, canoe-handling events, hiking and camping exhibits.

There will be no admission charge, Love emphasized. Parking will be free.

Love said the establishment of Traveland USA "not only will give the growing city of Irvine 60 new businesses, but will attract people from all over Southern California."

No tax pain

Leave it to Las Vegas to come up with a way to take all the pain out of tax time!

It's called the "Income Tax Tango," and it goes like this: Just bring all of your tax papers along, and while you're living it up for three days and two nights they'll do your tax return for you.

The unique package was put together by the Landmark Hotel, through an alliance with H & R Block, the income tax people.

Block has set up an office within the hotel just to handle the returns of the resort's guests, which they do at a special discount for those who purchase the Landmark's "Holi-Pac" tour package.

The package, which costs $29.95 per person double occupancy, includes the room, a free dinner and show, a free breakfast, free play coupons and a lot of extras, all of which should keep you plenty busy while the tax people compute your taxes.

And when you're finished, so will your income tax be.

Perhaps the Landmark's Income Tax Tango puts new meaning in the old salutation, "many happy returns."

Call 'em right

The National Society of Public Accountants is distributing a brochure which, among other things, asks that newspapers and the public "get the names right" when referring to tax preparers.

There are, it emphasizes, all kinds. To wit:

"Professional Tax Practitioner"—a person who is guided by a Code of Ethics and Rules of Conduct of his profession. He does not advertise his services or solicit clients. He may be an accountant, an attorney or an enrolled agent (see below). He is in practice year 'round, with an established office and reputation within the community. He keeps current on tax laws and changes by enrolling in courses and attending seminars conducted by his professional organizations. Members of three professional organizations in the tax preparation field have been recognized by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. They are the American Bar Association, the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and the National Society of Public Accountants.

"Enrolled Agent"—a person who has successfully completed an IRS written examination on Federal taxation, met character qualifications, and been screened by the Department of the Treasury, may be "enrolled to practice before the Internal Revenue Service." Enrolled agents, along with CPAs and attorneys, may represent clients at all levels in the appellate process of IRS. They may advertise, and these individuals may use the phrase "enrolled to practice before the IRS" to describe themselves on professional cards and stationery.

"Tax Return Preparer" or "Tax Preparer" or "Return Preparer"—any of a variety of unregulated persons who engage in the preparation of tax returns, usually on a part-time or seasonal basis. No standards of operation are imposed upon such persons by any outside authority.

"Commercial"—often used with "Tax Preparer" or "Tax Firm" to denote that the individual or company advertises and solicits business. In many cases local offices are part of larger "chain" operations or franchise arrangements.

"Tax Expert," "Tax Consultant," etc.—a self-imposed title which has no official standing or meaning.

"Fly-by-Night" Operator—sets up shop during the tax season only. Usually his office is located in an empty store. Often he has a different primary occupation. He's often not available after the tax season and nowhere to be found if the taxpayer is audited. In a storefront today and gone tomorrow.

Another voice

This week, too, the American Petroleum Institute, perhaps smarting under attacks from some quarters that that industry could have "lagged the dog" in production of energy fuels, served up these answers:

1. U.S. refinery production of distillate fuels (home heating oil and diesel fuel) set an all-time record in the six-month period between Aug. 1, 1972, and the week ending Feb. 2, 1973. This total was 510,463,000—nearly 58 million barrels more than in the comparable period a year earlier.

2. In every one of the 30 weeks starting last Aug. 1 and continuing through Feb. 23, 1973, distillate output was higher than in the corresponding week of the previous year.

3. During the week ending Feb. 2, 1973, a new all-time weekly distillate record was set when 22,062,000 barrels were produced.

4. During the first eight weeks of 1973, refineries in the U.S. produced a total of 165,711,000 barrels of distillate. This was 18 million barrels more than the distillate production in the first eight weeks of 1972.

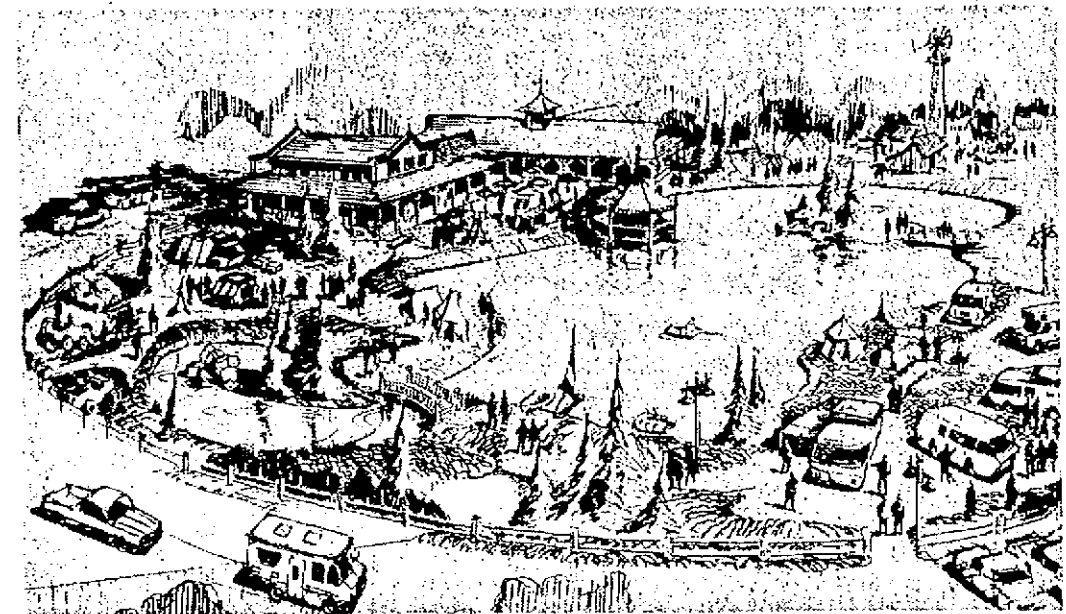

5. Despite the great increase in production, stocks of distillate fuels on hand have been lower in every week since last Aug. 1 than they were during the corresponding period a year earlier. Distillate stocks in recent weeks have fallen as much as 36 million barrels below the levels recorded a year earlier. The most recent report, covering the week ending Feb. 2, 3, shows stocks on hand as 118,868,000 barrels—more than 10 million barrels lower than the corresponding week a year ago. (Stocks, in API reports, mean amounts of oil on hand either at refineries, in pipelines, or at major terminals.)

6. Gasoline production in the first eight weeks of 1973 amounted to a total of 345,269,000 barrels—an increase of approximately 9.5 million barrels over the same period in 1972.

7. The demand for gasoline has continued so high throughout this winter that despite increased production, the stocks on hand have been lower in 28 of the past 30 weeks than they were in the comparable weeks a year earlier. During the past eight weeks, gasoline stocks have been below last year's figures by amounts ranging from 11 million up to 20 million barrels. The gasoline stock figure for the most recent week, ending Feb. 23, was 17,745,000 barrels lower than the figure a year ago.

ARTIST'S CONCEPTION OF TRAVELAND USA... going up in City of Irvine

The index bounced back in the latest week. Auto and truck production rose sharply, as assembly plants scheduled heavy Saturday operation to make up the loss of overtime caused by the Penn Central strike in the previous week. Railroad freight advanced, as did electric power output and lumber production. Small declines were registered in steel, coal, paper, paperboard, crude oil, and intercity truck tonnage.

INDUSTRY WEEK

Cheap conditioners hit

The energy crisis, already plaguing industry, will be pointed up in yet another way this coming spring and summer. It will dictate strongly that room air conditioners bought for home use be efficient.

Air conditioners are coming under heavy attack from the standpoint of energy consumption, as the cost of energy rises and as supplies of fuel become stressed, Industry Week magazine, for managers has pointed out.

The entire industry making room air conditioners is looking for ways to offer a more efficient machine without cutting off market growth with an unacceptable price increase.

Concern over energy began several years ago when New York's summer brownout problem began to be associated with the inexpensive—but inefficient—room air conditioners which sell like ice cubes during the heat wave months.

NEW YORK THREATENED to pass legislation banning inefficient air conditioners from that city's market.

In response, the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers (AHAM), Chicago, hastily compiled a consumer education campaign to encourage manufacturers to rate their products according to energy efficiency, and to encourage distributors and dealers to provide energy efficiency information to customers.

AHAM's "Watt Wise" program for the exact type air conditioner best suited to his needs.

Dealers are now being encouraged to push those units offering the highest Btu (British thermal units) output per watt of energy consumed. By purchasing the size best suited to a particular room, with the highest efficiency rating available in that size, the consumer can save on his electric bill.

AS PART OF THE "WATT WISE" campaign, AHAM instituted a certification plan. Every unit on the market was tested, rated for efficiency, and listed in a directory available to all manufacturers, distributors, and retailers.

Nevertheless, New York City is still considering legislation to prevent the sale of low-efficiency air conditioners. The New York State Public Service Commission is looking at four or five different levels of legislation in an attempt to determine the best method of approaching conservation of energy.

One way is to insist on labeling. The state would like all air conditioners to carry the Btu watt ratio, as well as an approximate dollar cost of the annual energy consumption of each unit. In cooperation with AHAM, the commission is providing labeling data to all manufacturers.

May Company in 'The City' leasing

A 30-year lease agreement has been signed by May Company California for a two-level, 160,000-square-foot full-line department store to anchor one end of the regional shopping mall in "The City" in Orange.

Site work for the new store will begin immediately with an opening projected for March, 1974.

The new unit will be May Company's 22nd full-line department store in Southern California. It will also be the introductory location in Southern California for a new "intimate" merchandising concept being developed by the firm.

May Company California is a division of May Department Stores Company (NYSE) headquartered in St. Louis.

Lease arrangements for the Orange County store were handled by The City Management Corporation assisted by Coldwell, Banker and Company.

Company image may miss reality

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP ANALYST

NEW YORK (AP)—All things considered, the company that projects an identifiable image collects the sale. It is for this reason that so many companies today attempt to sell not just their product but a concept with it.

Cigarettes are identified with fresh air. Soft-drink makers associate themselves with healthy, constructive youngsters. Beer and hard liquors are sold as symbols of hospitality and conviviality.

Many companies like to remind you that they are the biggest, the suggestion being that they got that way because their products are so good.

U.S. Steel has never been known to complain about the inevitable label that identifies it as "the nation's largest steel producer." Nor has Bank of America expressed displeasure at being called "the nation's largest commercial bank."

OTHERS emphasize qualities such as service. Holiday Inn calls itself "the most accommodating people in the world," an enviable image for an innkeeper and one that is difficult to challenge quantitatively by worthy competitors.

The most subtle and sometimes most effective image-conjuror is understatement. A country club in the Boston area has for years assumed a haughty and unwarranted dominance by calling itself "The Country Club."

A few years ago the National Industrial Conference Board, a private research and educational organization supported largely by business, shed the words that made it seem like one of the struggling bunch and called itself simply The Conference Board.

And now the New York Stock Exchange, the largest but only one of many securities exchanges around the country, has begun referring to itself as The Exchange. There has been no official name change, only the suggestion of it.

A COUPLE of weeks ago the statements emanating from the NYSE news bureau referred to it as the New York Stock Exchange or NYSE. A recent 12-paragraph release used "The Exchange" or "Exchange" 19 times.

Moreover, a new logo-type has been "especially handcrafted by Lippincott & Margulies," a firm that has designed many of the most popular trademarks and developed many corporate identity programs.

In explanation, the Big Board stated that after extensive research and testing, "it was discovered that hardly anyone says 'NYSE.'" They say "New York Stock Exchange," or just "The Exchange."

But there is more to the story. As the NYSE commented in its announcement, "The insignia is progressive, yet it retains the feeling of stability. And it illustrates an awareness of the challenges of the future."

To explain further: There is currently under way a vast shakeup of the securities markets, the outcome of which might be one vast central market for stocks and bonds. It would be a monumental change from the present.

AS OF now, there are exchanges spotted in various parts of the country—in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Salt Lake City, San Francisco, for example. Someday, it is foreseen, they will be more closely tied to each other.

Whether or not these ties actually will bind them into one exchange is at this time hypothetical. While it might happen, all that can be stated positively is that they will at least be more interrelated.

There is, therefore, a good deal of jockeying for position. The NYSE is by far the biggest, most powerful of these exchanges and it hopes to stay that way in any reshuffling. It is, in its own view, The Exchange, among exchanges.

The view is vigorously disputed by the so-called regional and by the American Stock Exchange, who maintain that many innovations originated with them and were later accepted by NYSE.

Image, they say in effect, is not reality.

Gibraltar's Lakewood unit opens

Gibraltar Savings has opened its 32nd office in California, in Lakewood Center, and has appointed a man whose father bought the first tract home sold in Lakewood in 1918 to manage the new facility.

Robert Owen Chapman is manager of the branch, open in temporary quarters at 5220 Lakewood Blvd. It was announced by Herbert J. Young, president.

Ground is expected to be broken in May for Gibraltar's permanent Lakewood Center office.

Following a decade of financial experience with Great Northwest Savings and Loan in Seattle, Chapman, 35, is returning to work and live in Lakewood.

He said he did not recognize this area. In 1918, the Chapman home was on North Bonfair, and the area was quite unlike the thriving spot it is today.

Holiday Inn financing set

Financing of $2,650,000 was arranged by United California Mortgage Company, a division of United California Bank, for the Holiday Inn under construction in Costa Mesa.

John Fogarty, vice president, UCM, said that Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Company provided monies for the loan to California Inn Management, Inc., operators of three other Holiday Inns in California.

The new Inn nearing completion is on 140,384 square feet on Bristol Street, north of the South Coast Plaza Shopping Center, and can be seen from the San Diego Freeway. General Contractor is F.R. Orr Construction Co. of Denver.

Architectural plans call for a five-story, 134-unit main building and a one-story restaurant with private banquet facilities. A separate "halcyon" with sliding glass door exit is one of many interior refinements designed into each rental unit.

United California Mortgage Company arranged financing for the Ventura Holiday Inn, and another one under construction in Modesto. At year's end, the firm's executive vice president Lawrence Becker announced that a record mortgage loan production of $430.1 million was reached in 1972.

Steel boom fades

PITTSBURGH UP1 — Before the U.S. dollar was devalued, there was strong evidence of a worldwide steel boom. But, suddenly, the steel supply tightened in Europe and Japan, principal areas of import competition for domestic mills.

The result was that many customers who formerly used foreign steel now are looking to U.S. producers for their supply, Iron Age magazine reports.

But the steel companies may be disappointed.

"We've been getting calls from brokers who used to deal exclusively in Japanese steel. They've got to be desperate to call us. But in most cases, we're not going to be able to deal with them," Iron Age quoted one Detroit steel producer as saying.

If the current trend toward domestic steel continues, the magazine said, American mills will find themselves strained to meet the need. This then may result in a discontinuance of price concessions by U.S. steelmakers that had been the rule just scant weeks ago, the publication reported.

"Our order books are full," one steel processor told the magazine. "The big mills are getting fat and sassy and shipping on deliveries."

Said another Detroit executive: "The mills are rapidly increasing prices, which is forcing us to seek increases or give up business. Some customers are going to be paying better than mill price to guarantee their full needs."

Zurn to acquire G-Lynx

Zurn Industries, Inc. (NYSE), expanding its existing product base in the leisure-time field, has announced it has entered into an agreement to acquire G-Lynx, Inc. of Paramount in exchange for an undisclosed amount of Zurn Common Stock.

Lynx, a designer and manufacturer of golf clubs and related equipment, has been in the forefront of the technological advances currently influencing the golf equipment industry through the use of stainless steel investment castings (in place of traditional forgings) in golf club design.

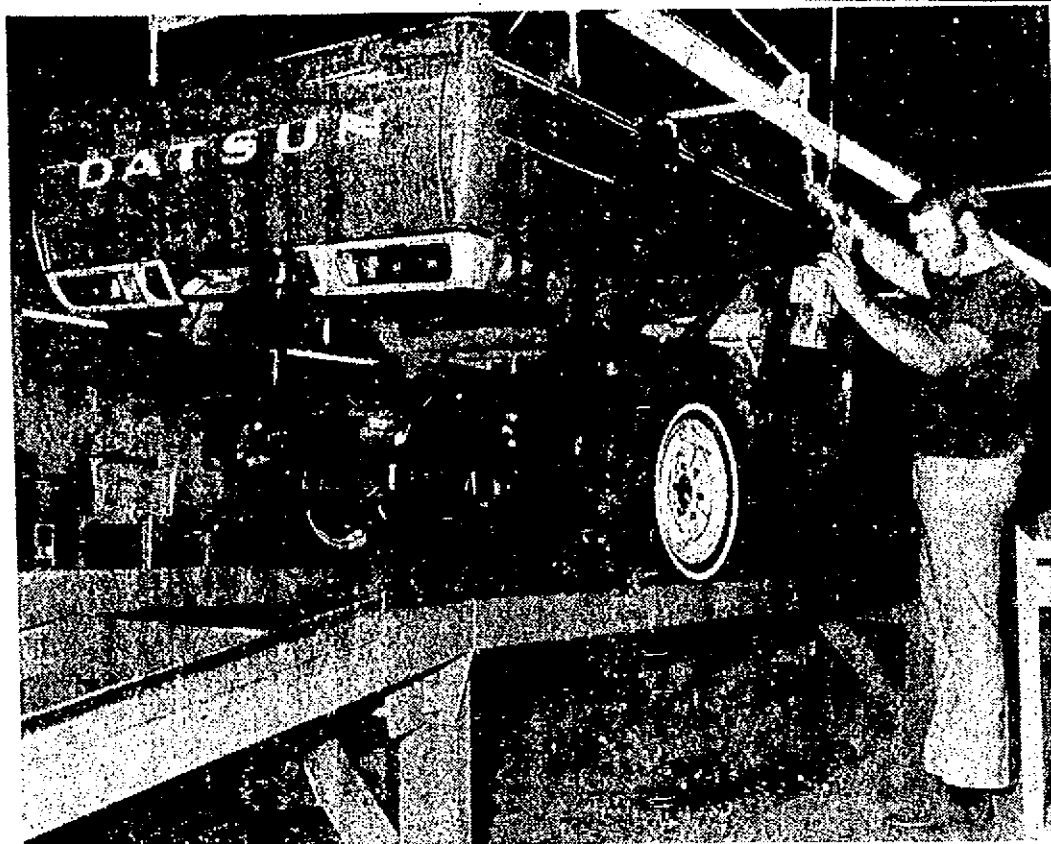

The acquisition of Lynx, whose sales volume is running at an annual rate of approximately $5 million, will be treated in Zurn financial statements as a pooling-of-interests. Upon consummation of the acquisition, Lynx will continue to operate with their present management,

DATSUN'S TRUCKS Assembled in harbor

Final assembly of imported Datsun pickup trucks, the attachment of the bed to the chassis, currently is being done by a recently completed 10-man assembly line in Los Angeles Harbor.

During a ceremony marking the facility's opening, Yutaka Katayama, president of Nissan U.S.A., said when the assembly line began operating in mid-January, finished trucks were coming off the line at the rate of 45 a day.

"We are now turning out 77 units a day and eventually hope to reach full capacity of 150 units a day," he said. The new facility, located in a 68,000-square-foot building at the Distribution and Auto Service, Inc., is the first of two at the truck bed which is then secured to the chassis. The vehicles move along the short assembly line under their own power. Katayama told a gathering of Southern California dealers: "Sometime in March we will record the 1,000,000 unit moving through this facility."

A company spokesman said there were certain economic advantages to doing the final assembly in this country. "Savings in transportation costs enable us to remain competitive in the highly competitive small truck market," he said.

Wear pants NEW YORK (AP) — Women's Lib notwithstanding, the men's pants industry is breaking all sales records. Manufacturers expect 1972 sales to show a total of 650 million pairs and the outlook for 1973 is estimated sales to surpass 500 million pairs in the nation.

The long range outlook through the decade is for increased spending for clothing, according to Ted Houghton, marketing vice president for Farah Manufacturing Co., maker of dress and casual slacks and jeans for men, young men and boys.

Looking ahead SECAUCUS, N.J. (AP) — With new and larger equipment, completion of interstate highway systems, utilization of anti-jacking devices and improved labor supervision, the trucking industry should be riding higher than ever in 1973, according to the head of a major U.S. transportation company here.

But to meet the expanding market warns William A. Nelson Jr. of the Nelson Resource Corporation, and to supply the goods and services required by the great urban complexes throughout the country, the industry must look even farther ahead.

WEEK'S TRANSACTIONS

DAILY INVESTOR

Maintain 'cushion'

By DON G. CAMPBELL
The older you get the less temptation there is to dash between moving lanes of traffic, clamber around on tall stepladders and antagonize strange dogs. Caution becomes very much a way of life.

Q: I am a 50-year-old widow, and since I had never worked outside my home before my husband died, I have no skills. My husband had about $35,000 in insurance which I have in a savings bank ($30,000 in six per cent certificates and the balance in a pass book savings at five per cent interest). I own my home, valued at about $20,000, but have no stocks or bonds. I work at a day center for my church and also sell Avon Products for therapy. Should I invest the insurance money in mutual funds or some other investment? Would I save on taxes, or would it be too much of a risk at my age? I need the dividends the savings pay to live on.

A: While, for extremely personal reasons, I refuse to accept the age of 50 as being all that old, I'll also have to admit that, in your particular situation, considerable caution is required.

I'd suggest that you maintain the $5,000 "cushion" for emergencies that you now have, and enlist a broker (or banker) to help you spread the $30,000 balance over several good-grade corporate bonds.

Specify very clearly that you're not interested in anything but bonds rated A, AA, or AAA. With this sort of diversification you should be able to average a yield of about 7.4 per cent to 7.7 per cent with a very high degree of safety.

Even more diversification is possible, of course, by going into a mutual fund specializing in bonds and preferred stocks, but you'll sacrifice a little in yield here — most of them, last year, were returning between 6.1 per cent to 7.4 per cent.

that the stock is selling at a high price relative to its earnings. Generally speaking a stock is considered fairly priced if it's selling at about 10 to 15 times its annual earnings. When a stock is selling at 40, 50, or 60 times its annual earnings, it's selling at a high multiple.

(Campbell will answer only representative questions of general interest in this column.)

TeleVues TV debut of 'Journey'

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

So you think you've got troubles. Maybe your problems won't seem so big if you take the time to watch Eugene O'Neill's autobiographical drama, "Long Day's Journey Into Night," on television tonight.

Produced by Britain's famous National Theatre, and starring Lord Laurence Olivier, the play will air from 8 until 11 on ABC (Channel 7).

The action takes place within 24 hours in August 1912 in New Haven, Conn., and deals with the love-hate relationships among members of the Tyrone (O'Neill) family.

Oh, yes, those troubles: Eugene O'Neill himself suffered from tuberculosis; his brother was an alcoholic; his mother was a drug addict, and his father was a brilliant but frustrated actor.

In the play, O'Neill used Tyrone as the family surname — taking it from ancestors who ruled over a section of Northern Ireland which later became County Tyrone.

Olivier portrays the father, James, and Constance Cummings the mother, Mary. The character based on Eugene O'Neill is called Edmund, chosen because it was the name of a brother who died in infancy. He is played by Ronald Pickup. Jamie, his brother, is played by Denis Quilley.

O'Neill wrote "Long Day's Journey" in 1941 and gave the script to his third wife, Carlotta, on their 12th wedding anniversary. He asked that it not be produced until 25 years after his death, because, he felt, there would still be people around who knew his family or had been portrayed in the play.

Mrs. O'Neill, however, gave permission three years after the dramatist's death in 1953 to the Royal Dramatic Theatre in Sweden to produce the play. The following year, 1957, the first American production opened in New York's Greenwich Village, starring Frederic March, Florence Eldridge, Jason Robards and Bradford Dillman.

Now, Mrs. O'Neill has given permission for the Pulitzer Prize-winning drama to be performed on TV. It probably won't appeal to some, but a number of viewers will be glad to have the opportunity to see the famous work.

BASKETBALL fans won't want to miss the Long Beach State-Weber State game in the NCAA playoffs today at Logan, Utah. It will be telecast at 11 a.m. on Channel 4. At 1 p.m., on the same channel, will come the Houston-Southwestern Louisiana playoff game at Wichita, Kan. And, at 3 p.m., Channel 5 will present the UCLA-USC game.

ON TODAY's Lawrence Welk show — at 7 p.m. on Channel 11 — his performers wheel a huge birthday cake on stage to mark Welk's 70th birthday. The show was pre-taped a couple of weeks ago, and Welk reportedly was surprised by the action. Beaming, he grabbed Cissy King for an impromptu polka to celebrate the occasion.

49ers open title bid as 14-point favorite

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer
LOGAN, Utah—"All they do," Long Beach State has been warned, "is beat you."
"They" are the members of the Weber State basketball team that opposes Long Beach State in the first round of the NCAA playoffs here today in Utah State's 10,200-seat Spectrum.
The contest will be shown live on KNBC, channel 4, beginning at 11 a.m.
This will be the third meeting between the schools and the victor's reward has always been the same—qualification for the NCAA's Western Regional tournament, which this year is at UCLA's Pauley Pavilion.

Long Beach took the two previous encounters handily, 92-73 in 1970 and 77-66 in 1971, but 49er coach Jerry Tarkanian has been repeatedly warned this week not to take the six-time Big Sky champions lightly.
"When you go through their statistics you don't really find anyone who frightens you," says Jim Killingsworth, a good friend of Tarkanian's who left Cerritos College two seasons ago to coach at Idaho State.
Killingsworth is right. Center Rich Cooper is the Wildcats' leading scorer with a 12.4 average.

Then comes Ken Gubler (11.8), Brady Small (10.1), Riley Wimberly (9.8), Dan Dion (9.0), and Steve Fleming (7.7).
"They don't appear to be playing well, either," says Killingsworth. "You keep thinking you're going to beat them, then the game is over and you look at the scoreboard and you've lost."
The Wildcats appear to face a physical mismatch. The 6-5 Fleming will have to guard Long Beach's 6-8 Leonard Gray; 6-7 Cooper will oppose 6-11 Nate Stephens; 6-4 Gubler will face 6-6 Ed Ratliff; the 6-1 Dion will draw 6-6 Glenn McDonald and Small (6-11) will have 5-10 Rick Abernethy.

"I'm sure Long Beach will be favored," says Killingsworth.
Jimmy (The Greek) Snyder agrees. Long Beach by 14.
"But they'd better not take Weber lightly," warns Killingsworth.
Hawaii took the Wildcats lightly in the first round of last year's playoffs at Pocatello, Ida., and Weber State handed the Rainbows a 91-64 loss.
"This Weber State team is better than that one," says Killingsworth. "Last year's team won the league by two games with a 10-4 record. This year everyone in the league was improved, and Weber State won the title with a 13-1 record."

The 49ers and Wildcats have faced four common opponents—Loyola, Northern Illinois, Pacific and Fresno State. Long Beach beat all four, Weber State beat Loyola and Northern Illinois, but lost road decisions to Fresno and Pacific.
The Wildcats were without Small in both losses. The 5-11 senior guard broke a foot on Dec. 16 and didn't return to the starting lineup until Jan. 25 when his team was only 8-6. Weber hasn't lost since, running off 12 wins in a row for a 20-6 season record, without Small, the Wildcats were 3-5 this season. With him they were 17-1.

"You don't think too much about Brady," says Killingsworth. "Then, after the game, you start figuring out what beat you and it is invariably Brady Small."
Tarkanian had the best warning for his athletes.
"We're to the point where there are no second chances," he has told his team, "so we had better not underestimate them."
The Long Beach-Weber winner will meet U.S. San Francisco Thursday at Pauley Pavilion. U.S.A. will face the winner of tonight's Arizona State-Oklahoma City game.
Those winners — Long Beach and UCLA?—meet on Saturday.

Sharks hit beach, mangle Aeros, 5-1

Shark officials watched their hirelings solve the Long Beach jinx, but more important to the new World Hockey Assn., they saw a lot of people Friday night—8,916.
The crowd, second largest ever to see a hockey match in the Long Beach Arena, witnessed a 5-1 shelling of Houston as the Sharks ended a two-game dry spell under L.B.'s round dome by the seaside.

Triggered by Tom Gilmore's three-goal hat trick, the victory enabled the Sharks to pull into a tie for third place in the Western Division race with Minnesota as well as even their season record at 32-32-5. Coach Terry Slater's ice troopers have nine games remaining in their dash for the WHA playoffs.

By clinching the season series from the Aeros, 6-3-1, the Sharks are stationed only three points behind second-place Houston. They also opened up more daylight on Alberta which trails the Sharks by nine points.

The Sharks now have attracted 22,325 for three matches in Long Beach, an average of 7,442. This is 2,100 customers more than the Sharks have averaged for 31 dates in the L.A. Sports Arena.

"A lot of people were apprehensive about us booking four games in Long Beach this year, but I wasn't," Sharks president Dennis Murphy said. "With the right promotion, hockey will draw here. Hopefully, next year we'll play more games in Long Beach. If we advance to the second round of the playoffs, we'll play all our games here," Murphy smiled.

"When you have a big crowd cheering, you naturally get a better effort," Slater said with a sigh of relief. "The tide finally came in for us in Long Beach."

The Sharks bolted into a 2-0 lead in the first 10 minutes on goals by Gilmore with only 2:01 gone and Jim Nickamp's at 10:01. Gilmore's 11th goal of the season came at point-blank range when he poked the puck past Wayne Rutledge who had subdued the Sharks 3-1 on Wednesday.

In the second period, the Sharks built up a 4-0 cushion when Mike Hyndman converted a perfect pass from J.P. LeBlanc and Gilmore slapped in his second goal of the evening.

George Gardner's shut-out bid for a $500 bonus went up in smoke when Houston's Ted Taylor connected with 2:58 elapsed in the final period. Gardner was making his first start since being hospitalized in Minnesota when hit by a puck in the face nine days ago.

But Gilmore offset Taylor's 28th red-lamper of the year with his third goal of the night. Bart Crashley assisted on three of the Sharks' five goals.

Amazing Dave Cowens and his Boston Celtics ran circles around the Lakers Friday night at the Forum to complete a four-game seasonal sweep of the defending NBA champions, 119-111.

Cowens poured in 34 points, grabbed 19 rebounds, handed off 5 assists and dived the court for loose balls as if he didn't have a care in the world or any concern for injury.

A sellout crowd of 17,505 marvelled at the way this 6-foot-9, 240-pounder conducted himself against a taller, stronger and fired-up Wilt Chamberlain. It is easy to see why the tireless redhead is the leading candidate for player of the year.

Boston led all the way and achieved its 58th win in 61 games in typical Celtic fashion—run, run some more and then, when near exhaustion, run again. The breathtaking pace was just too much for the older Lakers.

The Celtics shot 51 per cent, a high figure for their run-and-gun tactics and probably the primary reason they were able to sustain their lead wire-to-wire. But they also enjoyed an edge in rebounds (52-44) as they caught the Lakers flat on many occasions.

John Havlicek, who says he is slowing up, was not a major factor in the outcome until the fourth quarter, and then the 11-year veteran made the two most decisive baskets of the night.

The Lakers made a brief run to trail only 111-103 with 3:30 to go when Havlicek wiggled through the lane to bank in a jumper that looked to be a key basket.

But the Lakers spurred one more time, trailing 115-109 with 1:33 left. They needed a miss by Boston, but Havlicek once again knifed through the middle and scored.

Havlicek finished with 24 points, 10 in the final quarter, and also picked up some stitches over his left eye for a cut he sustained in a collision with Mel Counts.

All the Boston starters scored in double figures and old nemesis Don Nelson came off the bench to net 12 points in 15 minutes.

"We have the quickest and best fast-breaking team in the league because we get all five starters into the break," crowded coach Tommy Heinsohn, who had no dissenters.

Asked about the reckless manner which Cowens conducts himself, Tommy replied: "That's what makes him a great player. As for diving and scrambling, isn't it funny how a guy never gets hurt doing that sort of thing?" Heinsohn made his point but, as a matter of fact, Cowens did pull a groin muscle in one melee in the second period. It didn't affect him in the second half, however.

"I try to play this hard against everyone," said the 24-year-old from Florida State. "Our team is playing super. That's why I'm having such a good season."

Would you like the MVP award?

"It doesn't matter in the least," Dave replied. Cowens' quickness fore-ed the Lakers to take Chamberlain off him in the second quarter. But the strategy, which called for Bill Bridges to hound him, worked only for a brief spell. Cowens is so quick that guards would have trouble staying with him.

Cowens admitted he doesn't usually shoot as well as he did this night. He made 16 of 28 and most of them were from the outside.

The Laker offense never really clicked. They

Prestige only pressure on USC, UCLA

By LOEL SCHRADER
Staff Writer

Bob Boyd claims his team's early week bid to the National Invitation Tournament in New York City "assures us of going into the UCLA game in a relaxed manner."

John Wooden asserts that he is "pleased we have been able to start preparation for the NCAA tournament without the added pressure of having to win our game with the Trojans."

All of which is probably camouflage for what should be a typical crosstown basketball shoot'em-up that commences today at 3 p.m. in Pauley Pavilion. The contest will be televised nationally and will be shown live locally by Ch. 5.

UCLA will be seeking its 71st victory, but Wooden has another mark at which to aim.

Three times the Bruins have completed back-to-back conference seasons undefeated, but this time they have a chance for three league seasons in a row without a blemish.

That's not bad, considering that no other league school has been able to go undefeated once.

The last time the Bruins lost in the conference was at the tail-end of the 1969-70 season when the Trojans upset them at Pauley, 87-86.

UCLA, 25-0, has been stumbling lately. The Bruins were extended in achieving road victories of 72-61 over Oregon and 73-67 over Oregon State.

Last Saturday, they trailed Stanford by 25-18 at halftime before coming on in the final 20 minutes for a 51-45 win.

Wooden also has to be concerned about the condition of 7-1 center Bill Walton, who was struck by the flu early in the week and was excused from practice.

But the Trojans have more worries. They attempted a ball-control game five weeks ago at the L.A. Sports Arena and were blown out, 79-56. Boyd plans to employ the same tactics again.

"I wish we could run with them," says the USC coach, "but it just doesn't make sense. We're going to pass it, and pass it, and look for the high percentage shot."

With Walton guarding the gates against a set offense, there aren't many high percentage shots. More than likely, USC will carry an 18-9 record into the NIT and UCLA will take a familiar 26-0 into NCAA competition.

That is, unless the Trojans are so "relaxed" they forget where they are and the Bruins are so intent on NCAA preparations they forget who they are.

VIKINGS—

Beach came apart for the only time of the night and suddenly the foe trailed on 60-56.

The clock showed 1:41 and San Francisco had momentum.

But Dan Frost, all alone under the basket, made it 62-56 and Sagerhorn hit a free throw before Vince Chambers scored his team's last points with 40 seconds remaining.

Two crucial rebounds by Heaton had much to do with choking off the foe in the final seconds.

A pair of charity tosses by Cal Wulfsberg and a two pointer by Frost at the buzzer built the Vikings final margin of victory.

Al Forney and Ike Whitfield combined for 41 points as Compton College routed its second consecutive foe.

Forney, who scored 40 points Thursday evening, hit 9-of-15 floor shots to help his team build a 16-2 lead after six minutes. But coach Jim Newman began substituting and Marin closed the score to 29-20, the nearest point-spread of the night.

Track condition may provide edge Big 'Cap: Cougar vs. Royal Owl

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Staff Writer

Two-time Santa Anita Handicap runnerup Cougar II and 12 other old horses have been nominated to contest today's 36th running of the $170,000 event, but the track condition could threaten the starting status of at least two candidates while Thursday's downpour put additional horses into the lineup.

The rain that could keep top contenders Bicker and Crusading, the fabled $1 horse, from shooting for the winner's share of $105,000 would obviously please the connections of Royal Owl, who splashed to his $100,000 Strub Stakes victory in tons of goo.

Even though Royal Owl is listed second (7-2) on the morning line as compared to favored Cougar (8-5), a probable off track will lean heavily in Owl's favor. The Owl never has lost in the mud.

The mud factor also will be an asset to a pair of longshots, Big Spruce (15-1) and Queen's Hustler (20-1). The latter has superb speed from the starting gate and can traverse the mile and one-quarter distance of the Big 'Cap with ease. Queen's Hustler seems a tremendous stab in the dark at the price because he can go a route while setting a pace and slamming mud into his opponent's faces at the same time.

Most pre-race talk has centered on Cougar, however. The Big Cat from Chile never has been catalogued as an outstanding muddier, but trainer Charlie Whittingham indicated Friday that only a very bad track would keep Cougar out of the race.

Given Friday's condition of the track, the state of the one-mile oval today could approximate the "slow" conditions that prevailed for the 1971 Santa Anita 'Cap when Cougar carried 125 pounds and fell only a length shy of stablemate Ack Ack.

While it would take miserable weather to keep Cougar from his third attempt to win the Big 'Cap, Bicker (5-1) and Crusading (8-1) are unlikely participants if the track is moderately "off." Both horses are sons of Round Table, who won the 1958 Santa Anita Handicap on a fast track.

Whittingham will be attempting to write history if he runs Cougar in the Big 'Cap. Mary F. Jones' seven-year-old Chilean import has been brought up to the chase on workouts alone. In attempts to avoid excessive weight being loaded on Cougar's back, Whittingham refrained from racing Cougar. In fact, the Big Cat has not raced in 134 days.

Even so, he'll pack high weight of 125 pounds today. Cougar not only must fight the weather, but he must also break from the outside slot in the field, which gives him a long run just to get to the inside.

Whittingham, never one to miss a bet, also will send forth Canadian champion Kennebec (8-1) and China Silk (20-1) in today's big chase.

WILL THIRD TIME BE CHARM?

Cougar II takes his third crack at the $170,000 Santa Anita Handicap today. Two years ago Chilean-bred seven-year-old finished second in mile and one-quarter classic to Ack Ack. Last year he was runnerup to Triple Bend. It's first race in 134 days for the big cat.

Crimson Clem, Cabin and Curious Course, three 50-1 shots aiming for the moon, were entered on the chance that they might get lucky in mud or rain.

Estimates of Cougar's chances of snapping his Big 'Cap jinx rose considerably this week, though, when he had the master, Laffit Pincay, in the saddle during a morning workout. Cougar had no problems handling the slightly muddy track.

But a workout is no substitute for a tuneup race and unless Whittingham is some kind of super trainer genius, Cougar would seem destined to miss the Big 'Cap winner's circle a third time.

Los Alamitos season begins

Night harness racing returns to Los Alamitos Race Course tonight, with a field of the fastest pacers in the country and the debut of Quinella waging at a California harness track helping to launch the 1973 season.

First post tonight and throughout the meeting is 8 p.m. Los Alamitos' second season of night harness racing ends May 12. Nine races will be conducted each night Monday through Saturday.

The opening feature, the $8,000 Inaugural Pace, brings out a full field of two-minute performers. Heading the field will be Windy Way with Bobby Williams and Bramble Hall with Doug Ackerman.

Windy Way, a winner of his last two of three starts at Bay Meadows, takes lifetime earnings of $236,637 into the Inaugural. The speedy son of Meadow Skipper was an eight-time winner last year including a lifetime mark of 1:57 1/5 at Western Harness last December 2.

Bramble Hall was an outstanding performer at the recently concluded Bay Meadows meet, winning four of five starts, the speedster will be seeking his third successive win this year.

Completing the Inaugural lineup will be Abbe Chance with owner-driver Gerald Longo in the bike, Dulittle with Ray Gillilan, Garcon Roux with either Jack Williams or Joe O'Brien, Judge with Jim Crane, and the always dangerous Marshall Dares with Western Harness driving champion Jack Bailey.

Quinella wagering will replace Exacta betting in the first and sixth races during the 1973 season. A $2 Quinella will be held on the first race and a $5 Quinella on the sixth race. The traditional $5 Exacta will remain intact to the ninth race. In a Quinella race, fans need only to pick the first two finishers — in either order.
